SPLIT CAUSED BY BONUS ISSUE

Futile Parley Held With Leaders of Soldier Bloc.

LATTER SEEKS EARLY ACTION

Longworth Declares Party Caucus Will Vote to Continue Consideration of Tax Reduction Until It Is Completed and Thereafter Take Up Bonus—Insurgents to Fight It Out on Floor of the House.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The Republican majority in the house split on the question of early action or indefinite delay of the soldier bonus.

After a conference with leaders of the soldier bloc, who have forced a call for a party caucus Thursday night to pass on a proposal to order the bonus bill reported by the ways and means committee, Representative Longworth, the Republican leader, made this statement:

"I told the gentlemen that we had made plans to beat them, and we are going to beat them. There's no doubt about that. Our motion will be to instruct the ways and means committee to continue consideration of the tax reduction legislation until it is completed, and thereafter take up the bonus. The majority will be so big, I don't think there will be much of a fight."

Representative Royal C. Johnson of South Dakota, who, with Representatives Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, and A. Platt Andrew of Massachusetts, participated in the conference with Longworth, retorted with this reply:

"The house is going to be given an opportunity to vote on the bonus bill before Feb. 1. We will present a resolution at the caucus Thursday night instructing the ways and means committee to bring out the bonus immediately after the administrative features of the tax bill, now under consideration, are completed. If defeated on that resolution, we will work under the new rule coming out of the rules committee on Jan. 14, providing for a workable plan to discharge a committee from further consideration of a bill which a majority of the house deems to be unduly delayed. If this course proves to be necessary, we will file a motion to discharge the ways and means committee from further consideration of the bonus measure the moment the new rule is adopted, which is certain. This will bring the issue to a test before Feb. 1."

Mr. Longworth asserted he was prompted in his position solely by party policy. The merits of the bonus are not involved, he said. He claims not to be opposing the bonus, but, on the other hand, believes it would have a better chance of passing under his plan than under the plan of the soldier bloc.

Longworth explained that under his motion the tax bill would not only be reported out of the ways and means committee, but acted upon by the house before the bonus would come up. Moreover, the adoption of his motion by the caucus would carry with it no promise of favorable action on the bonus. That would be a matter for the decision of the committee and the house.

Mr. Longworth thought the ways and means committee should finish consideration of the tax bill not later than Feb. 15, and possibly as early as Feb. 1. Chairman Green has said the administrative features will be finished by Jan. 15.

STANDS ON MESSAGE

Coolidge's Views Unchanged by the Bok Peace Plan.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The so-called Bok peace plan has failed signally to influence the views held by President Coolidge. This was made plain in the president's behalf at the white house following the meeting of the cabinet.

Mr. Coolidge, it was stated officially, had nothing to add to the opinions expressed in his annual message to congress. In that message the president asserted emphatically that so far as the league was concerned, "the incident is closed." The United States, he pointed out, sees no reason to limit its own freedom and independence of action by joining it. "We shall do well to recognize this basis in all national affairs and govern ourselves accordingly," he added.

Reference to the words used by the president in his annual message emphasized the importance of the white house statement that Mr. Coolidge's views remained unchanged by the Bok proposal.

VICE DISTRICT CLOSED

Butler Makes Good His Threat to Clean Up Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Jan. 9.—Philadelphia's notorious vice district was closed tight as a drum last night. Brigadier General Butler, late of the United States marines, has made good his threat to clean up the town in 48 hours. How long the district will stay closed is problematical. It has been shut up before.

Lieutenant John Holton toured the underworld and put the padlock on about 20 saloons and two disorderly houses. Five gambling men and seven gambling girls were arrested and gambling tables were smashed with an ax. Otherwise there was little activity in the campaign to purify the city. Practically all the hundreds of questionable places in the underworld closed of their own accord.

DONAHEY WILL SEEK A SECOND TERM

Cox Still Favors Going Into the League of Nations.

Columbus, Jan. 9.—Former Governor James M. Cox, who made the principal address at the Jackson day banquet here last night, made no reference to any political ambitions he may entertain for 1924.

Cox declared in his speech that he still favored association with the league of nations, saying: "I am in favor of associating ourselves with the league of nations, under conditions that will meet every conscientious objection to past proposals. For four years the American conspirators, from whose sins untold millions have suffered, have vainly wished that the league of nations would die. That would, in their view, bring a sweeping vindication. It is a terrible indictment that those in control of our government have shared this unholy desire, and yet the facts support such a charge. But the league doesn't die. It continues to confound its enemies. Let the reactionaries, on the one hand, go their way serving Mammon as of yore. Let the radicals, if such a movement is forming, make their own track. The Democratic party is safely progressive, and, at heart, it still believes in the practical humanitarianism of Woodrow Wilson."

This declaration was vociferously applauded by the 1,000 banqueters. Governor Donahey also brought the assemblage to its feet when he announced in a short speech his candidacy for a second term. He said: "One year ago today, the mantle of Democracy, worn by Governors Campbell, Pattison, Harmon and Cox, was thrown across my shoulders, and I expect to return it to the Democratic party of Ohio three years from today, clean and unguilted."

Short addresses also were made by former Governors James E. Campbell and Judson Harmon.

Chairman Cordell Hull of the Democratic national committee sent a telegram in which he expressed regret at his inability to be present.

UNDER CONTROL OF MILITARY

Williamson County, Ill., Scene of New Disturbance.

SHERIFF FEARED OUTBREAK

Present Situation Developed When Citizens, Said to Be Affiliated With the Klan, Assisted Officers in Liquor Raids in Which Hundreds of Arrests Were Made—Rival Organization Formed and Clash Feared.

Marion, Ill., Jan. 9.—Williamson county, scene of the "Herron massacre" of 18 months ago, and more recently of war between klan and anti-klan factions, is under military control.

Three companies of state militia, rushed here when Sheriff Galligan notified Adjutant General Black that rioting threatened and the situation had gotten beyond his control, arrived during the night and now are in command of strategic positions.

Incident to the call for the militia was the trial of Glen Young, prohibition enforcement officer. He was charged with assault growing out of a raid on an alleged bootlegger establishment. The case went to a jury yesterday. In two minutes the jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

Sheriff Galligan explained he had asked for troops because he could not afford to take a chance of a repetition of the "Herron massacre," when a score of miners were slain during the miners' strike more than a year ago. A state investigation resulted in condemnation of Melvin Thaxton, then sheriff of Williamson county, for failure to call for troops when he saw trouble developing between the union and nonunion miners.

The present situation in Williamson county developed when citizens, said to be affiliated with the Ku Klux Klan, caused prohibition enforcement officers to come into the county and conduct raids. The officers deputized between 300 and 400 citizens, many of whom were armed, when the raids were carried out.

The first raid was staged Dec. 22, when posses headed by the enforcement officers swept over the county, making wholesale arrests. W. A. Peters, a police magistrate and a member of a raiding party at West Frankfort, a small mining town, was shot and wounded and two foreigners were wounded when they resisted arrest. One hundred and thirty-six arrests were made. The second raid was made on Jan. 5, when 50 arrests were made. A report that the Ku Klux Klan had contributed $3,000 for law enforcement in the county was denied, but it inflamed those opposed to the hooded organization.

The raids were conducted without the knowledge of Sheriff Galligan. The klan staged numerous parades in different parts of the county and there quickly sprang up an anti-klan organization, known as the Knights of the Flaming Circle. Clashes between the organizations were narrowly averted on several occasions.

Sheriff Galligan told Adjutant General Black that the raids conducted by the federal officers and citizens had become more than mere law enforcement raids. He charged irresponsible persons had seized upon them to burn buildings and rob. Only the presence of troops could restore order.

EUROPE BLIZZARD-SWEPT

Heavy Blanket of Snow Spreads from Norway to Italy.

Berlin, Jan. 9.—Europe is in the grip of the severest winter weather of a generation, which has spread a heavy blanket of snow from the top of Norway to the tip of Sicily. It has packed the rivers and seas with ice, disorganized rail traffic and shipping, and flooded large sections of some of the world's biggest cities. Even many perpetually warm places have been swept with damaging hurricanes. Meteorologists report that Italy has not seen such cold weather for several centuries. Even the canals and lagoons of Venice are covered with ice. Trains in all Europe are running with great delays because they have to battle the heavy snows. Shipping in the Baltic has been practically paralyzed. The harbors at Petrograd and Riga are closed entirely and others are kept partly open with great difficulty.

Boy Dies of Burns.

Columbus, Jan. 9.—Joe Thomas Brown, 7, died from burns received from an open gas stove.

MRS. LEONARD G. WOODS

Vice Chairman of Republican National Committee.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Wealthy Manufacturer Held.

Canton, Jan. 9.—Louis E. Griffith, wealthy manufacturer, was arrested here in connection with the murder of pretty Ruth Hunter, 19, whose lifeless body was discovered beside an unfrequented road three miles from this city. Griffith is held on a technical charge of being a "suspicious person," while county and city authorities planned to question him further regarding his actions on the night of the murder of Miss Hunter. Griffith is 32 and married. This is the second time Griffith has been taken into custody.

Aged Woman Missing.

Lima, O., Jan. 9.—Mrs. William Mohler, 68, mysteriously disappeared from her home in Bluffton, this county, more than a week ago. Mohler, who is 78, said he went to Fostoria on business and when he returned a week ago his wife was gone. He could give no reason for her leaving. They had been married 40 years. Officials are planning a nation-wide search.

Shot Through Head.

Toledo, Jan. 9.—With a bullet wound through his head, Arlington Elliott, 30, partner with his brother, William, in a garage at Holland, O., 12 miles west of here, was found lying on the floor near a cash register in the office of the garage. The coroner thinks robbery was the motive for the slaying.

Killed by Fumes.

Akron, O., Jan. 9.—William M. Bender, 56, is dead and his 15-year-old son is in a critical condition from fumes from a gas stove. Bender was found dead in bed and the son unconscious. Fumes from a flueless stove, used to heat the home, caused Bender's death, according to physicians.

Ban on Gambling.

Cleveland, Jan. 9.—Gambling in Cleveland, in whatever form, book-making or slot machines, must go. Safety Director Edwin Barry issued this ultimatum in the presence of Police Chief Jacob Graul, following a conference with City Manager W. R. Hopkins.

Police Chief Reinstated.

Newark, O., Jan. 9.—Charles B. Hager, chief of police, suspended recently by Mayor W. H. N. Stevens, klan candidate, has resumed his duties. Mayor Stevens dropped the charges against Hager and notified him his suspension was lifted.

Result of a Brawl.

Stuebenville, O., Jan. 9.—Baba Laka, 43, Serbian, was shot through the head as the result of a brawl at his home. Mele Bunda, 40, a guest at Laka's celebration, is held by the police.

Labor Party's Program.

London, Jan. 9.—Ramsay MacDonald, Labor party leader in parliament, in a speech to his followers, said: "If the Labor party is given power we are going to be careful. We will try to settle the difficulties that beset the nation, Europe and the world. We want peace and trade from the coast of Japan to the coast of Ireland. With the peace forces of all sections of Europe we will do our best to complete the structure of the league of nations and use it unreservedly to secure international justice."

FAVORS TAX CUT AND THE BONUS

Copeland Sees Much in Mellon Bill to Support.

SUBMITS NEW BONUS PLAN

New York Senator Proposes Sixty-Year Bond Issue to Raise Money Necessary to Meet Payment of $1,500,000,000 Bonus—Favors Single Payment of the Whole Sum to the Former Service Men.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York, in his maiden speech in the senate, pledged support to a tax reduction bill and warned his colleagues that failure to pass the soldier bonus along with tax reduction will not be favorably regarded by the American people.

The senator declared there was much in the Mellon bill which he would support. The idea of tax reduction, he said, is not a partisan one, and he expressed the belief that it will be possible to frame a measure which will provide for reasonable tax reduction and at the same time make provision for payment of the bonus.

Senator Copeland said he had received an enormous number of letters from persons in New York state urging him to support the Mellon plan. The real purpose of the plan, he asserted, is to reduce "the surpluses on the rich," adding: "The rest of us, as usual, under a Republican administration, get only the crumbs."

The senator submitted an entirely new plan for the bonus, the chief feature of which was a cash payment of the whole sum at once in a single payment. He estimated the amount which should be paid the ex-service men at $1,464,777,263, on the accepted basis of $1 a day for each day of home service and $1.25 a day for all who saw foreign service, to which the senator said, he would add an additional 25 cents for those in the home service, placing all on an equality. The number entitled to receive the bonus the senator estimated at 2,435,000 serving overseas and 2,244,853 serving at home.

To raise the money necessary to meet the payment of a little less than $1,500,000,000 the senator proposed a 60-year bond issue, issuing $1,500,000,000 at once, or if the bonus is paid in five equal installments, in issues of $300,000,000 annually for five years. The total interest cost at the high rate of 5 per cent would be less than $75,000,000 per year. Twenty-five millions paid annually to retire the bonds, the senator pointed out, would make a total expense to the country the first year for interest and principal of $100,000,000, and this would decrease annually till the debt was wiped out at the end of 60 years. The argument that such a bond issue would upset the treasury, Senator Copeland said, was ridiculous.

LABOR MEMBERS EXULTANT

House of Commons Reassembles for First Time Since Election.

London, Jan. 9.—Squad after squad of labor members marched exultantly into the house of commons when the house re-assembled for the first time since the December elections. Turbulent Scottish socialists celebrated the triumph of labor by hurling taunts at the Tories sitting glumly in the government benches. The biggest display of "red" was introduced by the supporters of John Scurr, who escorted him to commons in a huge automobile coach bedecked with the flaming color of revolt. They came from the east end of London, where Scurr was elected, and they terrorized timid stockbrokers as driving through the financial section they vociferously belittled the "red flag" and the "international." There was general cheering in commons when premier Baldwin and Ramsay MacDonald, the Labor leader, both smiling, gripped hands on the floor of the house. The only business transacted at the opening session was the election of the speaker, J. H. Whiteley.

Fire Trucks in Collision.

Columbus, Jan. 9.—Fred O. Dalton, fireman, attached to No. 6 engine company, lost both legs when two fire trucks collided while responding to an alarm. Dalton was riding on the rear of the hose wagon when it suddenly slowed down, due to traffic. The pump truck of the same engine, which was following, rammed into the hose wagon, the heavy steel bumper crushing Dalton's legs.

LEGAL ACTION LIKELY

Bok World Peace Contestants Allege Unfair Methods.

New York, Jan. 9.—Dissatisfaction has been caused by what is characterized as unfair methods on the part of the jury of award in awarding the $100,000 prize in the Bok world peace contest.

Mandamus proceedings probably will be brought within 48 hours to compel the jury of award to continue in session until every member has read every one of the 22,000 odd plans submitted in the contest. This, it is declared, is required by the conditions of the contest. The jury of award admittedly has read nothing more than summaries or digests of a limited number of the plans that survived the process of elimination applied at the headquarters of the American peace award. The complaint is made that Elihu Root, chairman of the jury of award, read the winning plan and nothing more.

The claim is that the $100,000 prize has been illegally and unfairly awarded, and that until a legal and proper award is made every person who entered the contest has an interest in that $100,000.

Formal complaint is being planned by some contestants for submission to United States Attorney Hayward, charging violations of the mail laws in the conduct of the peace prize contest. Asked what action he will take if such a complaint is placed before him, Colonel Howard said: "I will take appropriate action if complaints are submitted to me."

TO AIR KLAN ACTIVITIES

Ballots Ordered From Texas in Mayfield-Peddy Contest.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Forty deputy sergeants-at-arms will be named by a subcommittee of the senate committee on privileges and elections to gather up in Texas and ship to Washington all the ballot boxes, ballots, tally sheets and other paraphernalia used in the Mayfield-Peddy senatorial election of November, 1922.

This decision was the first move in the hearing of what promises to be the "Newberry case" of the present congress. The contest also will turn the spotlight on the alleged political activities of the Ku Klux Klan, since the klan is named in an alleged conspiracy to obtain political control of Texas.

This, for the first time, klan activities will come under serious congressional investigation and the country will learn just how far-reaching its political operations extend to the point of controlling elections and dominating government.

The subcommittee voted to have the ballots brought to Washington and recounted under the jurisdiction of the committee to ascertain just what the ballots will show in connection with the contest.

Robbed by Bandits.

Cleveland, Jan. 9.—Two armed bandits, tying up Max Rosenzweig, Lakewood haberdasher, robbed him of $600 in cash, a $300 diamond ring and $3,000 in merchandise and escaped in an automobile.

PENITENT UNCLE

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

© 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"AND so, after all these years, I am trying to make up for my indifference by this method of reparation. The money is yours to do with as you desire. When you receive it I shall be dead and beyond the reach of thanks."

"Your belatedly penitent great-uncle, Jonathan Benjamin Cowles."

This was the conclusion of the letter which Jimmy Stiles several days ago had signed with a flourishing signature and then reread with grinning satisfaction. How tickled Mary Louise would be! And how unlikely ever to discover the hoax.

Now he sat at his desk and wondered whether Mary Louise had yet cashed the inclosed certificate of deposit.

She had come to visit her aunt, who was matron of the County Home, where Jimmy was one of many lonely, blue-overalled and aproned orphans.

Mary Louise's mother, because of whose illness she had been sent away, died during her absence and she stayed on with her aunt. And when matrimony with a widower of small means and considerable family claimed the estimable matron, Mary Louise still lingered.

Jimmy became her companion in all the playground squabbles, nor did the marvelous piece of luck which befell him when he was fifteen make him forget her.

Jimmy rose rapidly—graduated brilliantly from high school—went into a lawyer's office daytimes and continued study at evening school. Ultimately he entered the bar and became an attorney with a reputation before he was thirty.

Meanwhile Mary Louise had been "bound out" to a lonely farmer's wife. Growing attached to her, the woman had done more than the stipulated clothing and feeding of the child—had taught her what she could of grammar, geography and similar rudiments of learning.

A summer boarder had taken an interest and lent her books, not only during her stay but for many months afterward.

These changes had meant separation for the boy and girl, during which the memory of each grew dim to the other but did not utterly fade. And at

Drift Harbor, that wonder spot of ocean beach and vivid sunset and riotous surf, their paths converged once more.

Signing his name in the Drift Harbor house register, Jimmy looked up from the final flourish of his signature—James W. Stiles, Boston—straight into a pair of well-remembered soft blue eyes.

"You! Mary Louise!"

Yes, it was Mary Louise, who sometimes filled in at the hotel, which stood a mile or two from her adopted home, in various capacities from that of clerk to waitress.

"Are you happy, Mary Louise?" he asked one day.

Mary Louise threw him a questioning glance from beneath her curly lashes. "Just now," she said ingenuously. "But winters—oh, Jimmy, it is very lonely. And—and I see no future. If only I could afford to go to the city and have a couple of years at a normal school. Then—oh, just think, I might be able to teach!"

She sighed blissfully, as though teaching were an achievement too heavenly to contemplate. "I dream nights of what I would do with a thousand dollars. That's my favorite air castle in Spain."

That winter Jimmy unexpectedly won a case which netted him an even thousand and the sight of the check brought back to him the words of Mary Louise.

An intense longing surged within him to help her out even as years ago he had been helped by the kindly rector. But handing over a sum of that amount to an unrelated young lady presented a problem.

Suddenly the idea of creating a fictitious great-uncle occurred to him—a great-uncle who would exist but for a moment on a sheet of paper, but long enough to bequeath to Mary Louise a thousand-dollar legacy.

The letter had been written and sent and now Jimmy sat and dreamed in his office of its reception by a blue-eyed girl in a lonely farmhouse near Drift Harbor.

And as he dreamed the door of his office opened. At sight of a slim figure Jimmy sprang to his feet.

"You fraud!" cried a sweet voice. "My great-uncle Jimmy!"

Jimmy swallowed. "How—er—why—er—"

"Well, partly because I read in the papers of your thousand-dollar fee in the Hitchcock case, but mostly because only one person in the world makes the funny 'J's' that you do. I had only to compare the 'J' of John-than with the 'J' on the hotel register to have my suspicions confirmed. Of course I couldn't—"

"Mary Louise," interrupted Jimmy firmly, "hand over that certificate!" And when she did so he folded it evenly and slipped it into his pocketbook. "What an idiot I was to give you a chance to go out of my sight again!" And his face wore the expression of one upon whom a great light has broken suddenly. "Come straight into my arms, my darling!"

And Mary Louise came.

The Pythian Games.

One of the four great festivals of ancient Greece, celebrated every fifth year, in honor of Apollo, in the Crisaean plain near Delphi was the Pythian games. They were instituted, according to tradition, by Apollo, in commemoration of his victory over the serpent Python—whence the name. These festivals were at first limited to singing, with cithern accompaniment; but afterward they came to include athletics, horse racing and contests in poetry and art. The victors were crowned with a laurel wreath, or presented with a palm branch. The Pythian games were continued until 394 A. D.

Would Spare Grandma's Feelings.

The other day my aunt was writing to her mother, and she said to her little boy, who had recently learned a few of his letters at school: "Gene, don't you want to write your letters to grandma and show her how much you have learned?" Gene thought a few minutes and then replied: "O, mother, grandma is so old and it's been a long time since she went to school, she probably wouldn't know what they are."—Exchange.

No Need to Repeat It.

Raymond had played until he was overly tired, and when he went upstairs to bed his mother called after him not to forget his prayers. Listening, she overheard the following, uttered in a sleepy voice: "Dear God: I'm awfully tired; so my prayer tonight is the same as last night and you remember what that was, Amen."

About Wood Engraving.

Wood engravings of high class are made almost exclusively of boxwood, and the large blocks are made of small pieces fastened together. The engraving is done across the end of the grain. Japanese wood prints are made on lengthwise sections of cherry wood parallel to the grain.

His Fate.

The young man brought some verses to his father. "Father, I have written poems." "What! Let me see them instantly." The father read them over carefully, the tears slowly welling to his eyes as he did so. Finishing the last one, he threw down the manuscript, folded the boy to his breast and sobbed: "Oh, my poor, poor son!" "Are they so bad as that, father?" "Bad! They are excellent. They are real poetry. My boy, my boy, you will starve to death!"—Indianapolis Star.

The Channel Islands.

The name Channel Islands is applied to a group of small islands in the English channel, lying off the northwest coast of France. Their total area is about 75 square miles, and their population numbers about 100,000. The principal islands are Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney and Sark. Jersey, Alderney and Guernsey are famous for their cattle. The "Channel Islands" were anciently an appanage of the duchy of Normandy, and have belonged to England since the Conquest. The inhabitants still speak the old Norman-French language.

No Call to Interfere.
 My neighbor's little four-year-old girl is very old-fashioned. I was cutting off some dead limbs from my tree across the street from her and she was watching me. She called to me and said: "What are you doing?" I answered, "Oh, only cutting some dead branches off. It's all right, isn't it?" She thought a minute and replied, "I guess so; it's your tree."—Exchange.

Explaining the Hermit.
 A good many of the unknown "relatives" who always appear soon after the death of a rich hermit probably are genuine, and help explain why the hermit became a hermit.—Kansas City Star.

WONDERFUL FEAT OF NATURE

Certain Seeds May Be Subjected to Intense Heat and Still Retain Their Vitality.

Amazing ways of enabling her children to survive extraordinary hardships have been devised by nature. None of her inventions has more wonderful powers of endurance than the seed by means of which plant life is carried on.

You may subject certain seeds for hours to a temperature of 100 degrees below freezing point, you may heat them until they are hot enough to burn your hand, yet they will not lose their vitality.

Great fires often rage through the forests, destroying mile after mile of giant trees. When the fire has passed there remains nothing but charred stumps and flame-scarred, smoldering soil. Yet within a few months the whole district will be green with the first leaves of the tiny seedling trees.

Recent tests to discover the heat at ground level during a forest fire disclosed that it was from 1,000 to 1,500 degrees Fahrenheit. The fires move so quickly that this intense heat lasts for only a minute or less at any spot.

Various tree seeds were then tried to see what heat they could resist. It was found that fir cones could withstand a temperature of 1,200 degrees Fahrenheit for eight minutes without losing their vitality.

FEAST OF SAINT MICHAEL

Festival Was First Appointed by Pope Felix III in the Year 480.

Michaelmas, the Feast of Saint Michael and All Angels, occurs September 29. The festival was first appointed by Pope Felix III in the year 480. In the Greek church it did not originate earlier than the Twelfth century. It was an old custom in England to mark the day by electing civil magistrates and that of guardian angels of whom Saint Michael was reported the prince.

A more famous custom is that of eating roast goose, the origin of which has long exercised the wisdom of antiquaries. The traditional Michaelmas goose has been traced at least as far back as the tenth year of Edward IV and it is said that one of the strongest objections of the English commonalty to the reformation of the calendar was based on the confusion which would follow if Michaelmas day was not celebrated when stubble goose are in their perfection.

There is an old proverb that "If you eat goose on Michaelmas day, you will never want money all the year round."—Detroit News.

Japan's Expert Top-Spinners.

The pastime of top-spinning is carried by the Japanese to a point of great perfection. The tops used by them are of delightful variety, both in size and construction. The largest of all tops is more than a foot in diameter, and proportionately heavy. Some are solid; others contain a flock of little ones, which fly out when the top is lifted, and spin away by themselves. Others pull into a spiral or ladder of successive tops. One draws up into a lantern, and spins cheerily in that form.

The spinners balance their tops on any kind of surface, round or flat, on the edge of a fan, the sharpest Japanese sword, along a thin cord, and after some moments of unconcerned spinning there it is tossed on the table, with apparent carelessness, where it goes on whirling.

Self-Appreciation.

Humor and self-criticism, it has often been pointed out, go together; a sense of humor is an antidote for conceit. Victor Hugo had no sense of humor, and the complacency with which he looked back upon his career arose from a conceit that was even more colossal than his genius.

Late in life some of his friends were talking with him and, of course, about him. One said, "Streets ought to be named after him."

Another remarked, "Streets? Paris ought to change its name and be called Victor Hugo."

Another added scornfully, "Paris? Paris, after such a great man? No, indeed! France ought to change its name and the whole country be called Victor Hugo."

The great writer then lifted his head and, with Jovian dignity, spoke in tones of quiet, solemn conviction: "That will come in time."

Bed Time for Flowers.

Different flowers have different closing times. The common water-lily retires about four o'clock in the afternoon, the daisy and buttercup much later in the evening. Tulips and crocuses, being susceptible to climatic changes, go to bed as soon as the heat of the day is over and the evening chill sets in. The goat's beard, something like a dandelion, and growing in tall grass, shuts up its flowers at noon, and does not open them again till the next morning. For this reason the flower is sometimes called "John-go-to-bed-at-noon." The scarlet pimpernel, found in most British cornfields, shuts its petals when the sky gets dark and cloudy. Thus, it has earned for itself the name of "Shepherd's Weather Glass."

Serge, Twill for Chic New Outfit

Navy Blue, or Neutral Beige and Gray Popular for Fall Wear.

Come what will in the world of fashion, there is no such thing as oblivion for the tailored frock of serge or twill. In navy blue or neutral beige and gray, declares a fashion correspondent in the Kansas City Star. It holds its own season after season, and the remarkable thing is that designers contrive to give it a distinctly new aspect each time it appears.

This year a certain variation in details is noted, with much attention paid to those suggested by the modes of China. This, perhaps, is more in the introduction of color and in touches of embroidery or the application of narrow bands of bright trimming around the neck and down the side, just as one sees in the Chinese coats.

It is probably by the clever use of color that navy blue frocks of this season are distinguished from those of last.

In line they are straight and slim, with wrist-length sleeves which are sometimes tight, but quite as often bell-shaped, with dainty undersleeves of net or muslin.

For practical purposes nothing takes the place of a dark blue gown, and with the addition of a well chosen hat, shoes and stockings of correct lines and colors, and a scarf of really good fur, it constitutes a street costume that leaves nothing to be desired in the way of chic and good taste.

Afternoon and dinner gowns of lace and velvet are shown with cape or full-length Jenny sleeves. A striking gown of black velvet has cherry red and gold sleeves.

There is such a youthful charm about the cape frocks and suits that it is not surprising to find them conspicuously featured in every collection of autumn and winter models, particularly among those designed for the school and college girl. One shop known from coast to coast for its youthful clothes which meet every demand of smartness and practicability makes a special point of the capette suit.

It is developed in soft woollens and consists of a frock with a silk top, a wrap-around skirt of wool and a hip-length coat which has a cape extending just over the shoulders. The collar

Rows of pin tucks vary the straight-line silhouette of the coat dress in navy polart twill. Bindings are beige crepe.

Is often fur and sometimes there are fur cuffs, but the model which has been received most enthusiastically has simply the touch of fur at the neck.

There are also charming little frocks of wool, velvet or velveteen. These have a short, straight or circular cape which snaps onto the shoulders and may be removed when necessary.

In one instance it is fashioned of very dark green wool. The cape is of circular cut and has a collar of gray caracul. On the frock there is a little straight Chinese collar of silver embroidery and this touch of silver is repeated in the flaring cuffs.

Warmth and Wool.

Pulled-wool comforters have taken the place, to a great extent, of those made of down. These quilts are very warm and are also very light in weight. They may be bought for varying prices according to the proportion of wool used and also the character of the cover. But it is not necessary to buy these comforters ready-made. The wool may be bought in bats as is cotton. The work of making them up is not at all difficult and takes very little time. Tufting them is quite as practical as quilting and much simpler. One may then secure a very inexpensive and durable bed-cover.

HEAD HUNTERS

Missionary H. B. Dickson Gave Splendid Address to Presbyterian Brotherhood.

H. B. Dickson, a missionary of the Baptist church, who spent seven years in India spoke most entertainingly before the Presbyterian brotherhood Tuesday evening of his work in the Himalaya mountains. The speaker said the hill people of this country are Head Hunters and are robed only in sunshine. Sometimes the women of the tribes are found wearing a necklace of amber beads. The annual rainfall is fifty-seven feet, not inches. The speaker said with all this water the natives do not know anything of cleanliness, as they are the dirtiest people on the face of the earth. India alone has a population of three hundred and thirty millions of people. The Brahmapootra river, which is one thousand miles long and is a stream with an unusually swift current.

Mr. Dickson showed the warring and domestic implements and some of the articles of wearing apparel which were scanty and only worn by dandies on dress parade. He worked among the natives of Assam, altho he visited other parts of India. He went among the Cabulists, traders of India and they bear striking resemblance to the Semitic races. He thinks possibly they are descendants of the ten lost tribes of Israel.

MONDAY CLUB

Trees to be Planted in Memory of Country's Soldier Dead.

At the Monday club meeting this week fifty members were present and the response to the roll call was the names of Turkish cities.

Three well prepared papers were read by Mrs. Mabel Walling on Geography and History; Nationalities and Superstitions by Mrs. Ned Bell; Constantinople. Old and New by Mrs. D. V. Courtright. A list of ten subjects were written on the blackboard and the members voted for four of these that they preferred to study for the next year's work. Mrs. Charles Mason was elected to active membership. Miss Nell Weldon reported that she had turned in $11.75 to the treasury, money which had been contributed by various organizations of the town towards the planting of trees in memory of the Pickaway county dead heroes of the World war. She regrets exceedingly that no trees have been planted and hopes that something may yet be done along this line.

FORD WRECKED.

Southbound traction car due here at 12:38 Tuesday afternoon and Edward Crist's Ford coupe collided on North Court street opposite the home of Mr. Crist as he was coming out of his driveway. He saw the car just in the nick of time and turned his machine, but was hit before he got out of harm's way. He escaped with a scalp wound on the right side of his head, but his car was badly wrecked.

Mr. Crist is receiving the congratulations of his friends on his fortunate escape from what might have proved a fatality.

SOME NATIONS BAR KISSING

In Japan It Is Looked Upon as the Depth of Human Degradation—Cut Them Out of Films.

Remarkable penalties are exacted in some countries from those found indulging in kissing. In Milan guilty parties are liable to a heavy fine; in certain towns in Russia before the war it was also a punishable offense; while elsewhere men cannot kiss the womenfolk on Sunday without risk of prosecution.

Recently, in Belgium, a man and his wife were fined 78 francs each for having kissed in public. This case is all the more surprising, as in Belgium and France a public kiss between spouses on meeting or separation is recognized as a traditional salute.

In Japan kissing is looked upon as the depth of human degradation. Every kiss in film has to be cut out, and there are film censors who do almost nothing else but look out for kisses.

Perhaps the worst sufferers from the kissing habit are railway authorities, and in a number of instances kissing on the station premises is forbidden in view of the delay thus caused. Special notices to this effect were issued by the Bavarian state railways.

The penny platform tickets were introduced on railways in England during the war to prevent kissing on the platform and consequent delay.

How did kissing originate? The Bible is full of kissing of the widest range, from the treacherous kiss of Judas to Jacob's tender salute of Rachel at the well. The early Romans sealed all their nuptials with kisses, and kisses were a popular observance among the early Christians until, in 397, such salutes between the sexes were forbidden.

If we are to credit the Scandinavian tradition, kissing was a pleasurable habit introduced into England by Rowena, the beautiful Saxon.

Kisses have helped in no small degree to mold history. In 1794 the beautiful duchess of Gordon founded and raised the Gordon Highlanders, one of the most noted of Highland regiments, by kissing.—Baltimore Sun.

USE NEWSPAPERS FOR WALLS

Two Thousand Tons Shipped From Europe in Year—Helps Keep Vermin From Houses.

The Chinese, it is thought, are the greatest of all consumers of old newspapers. The official returns of the customhouse at Newchang show that that port alone, during the year for which figures are available, received approximately 2,000 tons of old European newspapers valued at $75,000.

It is not at first easy to imagine to what use so much obsolete news can be put. It is, however, ascertained that the middle class Chinese prefer newspaper to native wall paper as a covering for their walls. It has a greater power of resistance and affords a more effective barrier to the invasions of the vermin that infest Chinese houses, often driving out the inmates.

Moreover, the Chinese are experts at cutting out of newspapers waistcoats which they wear next to the skin. These paper waistcoats are said to be the best possible protection against a sudden "cold snap." In view of these admirable uses to which European newspapers may be put, it is not surprising to learn that the imports constantly show increase in weight.

It should be added, however, that the value of the import has declined. This fact is explained by the rapid development of the native newspaper press that has occurred during the last few years.

Feaks of Climate Shown.

Through underground observation stations, scientists have recently completed a series of experiments that indicate Mt. Desert island, a few miles off the coast of Maine, has a higher average temperature and greater evaporation than Long Island, more than 200 miles to the south. The recording instruments consist of thermometers that register maximum and minimum temperatures and specially designed bottles, filled with distilled water and fitted with porous stoppers that protrude above the ground. When the sun strikes them, the liquid is drawn from the glass containers in the same manner that moisture is extracted from the earth. Measurements of the water are taken at intervals and the differences noted give the amount of evaporation. On this island, trees, flowers, and plants that are characteristic of the lands of ice and the more southern climes thrive, while birds of the Arctic and the southland make it their common home during the spring and summer months.—Popular Mechanics.

The Tomb of Cyrus.

In a remarkable ruin, in a tolerable state of preservation, at Pasargadae in ancient Babylonia, is the tomb of Cyrus. It has been called "a house upon a pedestal," and consists of a pyramidal base constructed of huge blocks of white marble, surmounted by a house of the same material, covered with a sloping stone roof. The interior consists of a small chamber, ten feet long, seven feet wide and eight feet high, entered by a low and narrow door; there was deposited, in a golden coffin, the body of the great conqueror. It is supposed that a row of 24 columns (some of whose broken shafts still remain) enclosed the sacred spot. On these mutilated columns is repeatedly found the inscription (written in Persian and in the so-called Median): "I am Cyrus the King, the Achaemenian."

IN BANKRUPTCY

Barton Walters filed a petition in bankruptcy for Frank M. Dennis, of Five Points, in the United States court in Columbus Tuesday. The schedule shows assets $18,000, liabilities $22,000. The assets consist of 177 acres in Monroe township, live stock, farm implements and growing crops.

Coconut Tree's Many Virtues.
The coconut is one of the most useful of all trees to the natives of the regions where the coconut grows. The nut comprises a food and drink and the milk of the nut may be made into an intoxicant where that is desired. Its fiber is used for making ropes, rugs and matting and the husk for fuel. The wood is very durable and in the hands of the natives it is used for many purposes.

Nature's Laws Must Be Obeyed.
I do not believe that God, or nature, or a master, or metaphysical formulae can or will make good in a miraculous way for the inevitable results of our transgressions of the natural laws that govern our being. If such miraculous healing were possible and of common occurrence, what occasion would there be for the exercise of reason, will or self-control?—Henry Lindlahr, M. D.

A Good Living and Something Besides

With cows and a De Laval Separator, you are sure of a good living and often something besides. With cream or butter to sell, bringing in a steady cash income; with milk, cream and butter for your table; and with skim-milk to raise calves, pigs and chickens, you are absolutely safe.

And the De Laval Separator has done more than any other factor to make this so. It is the original separator, skin's cleaner under all conditions, wears longer, and is easier to operate and clean than any other. We shall be glad to prove this to you. Give us an opportunity.

Homeric Verse.

The name Homeric verse is sometimes given to hexameter verse—the epic or heroic verse of the Greeks and Romans—because it was adopted by Homer in his two great poems, the Iliad and Odyssey. Hexameter verse, as its name implies, consists of six feet, the first four of which may be either dactyls or spondees, while the fifth must regularly be a dactyl and the sixth a spondee. When, however, the fifth foot is a spondee, the verse is said to be spondaic. A spondee consists of two long syllables, and a dactyl of one long syllable and two short ones. Virgil's Aeneid also is written in hexameter verse.

Life's Principal Business.

Half the business of life is concerned with knowing how to use men and women, how to understand them, how to get on with them, how to turn their faculties to the best account.—Viscount Bryce.

Henri Aguesseau.

If anyone is inclined to depreciate the importance of a few minutes a day devoted to some task or hobby, let him consider the case of Henri Aguesseau, the great French jurist and statesman (1698-1751). M^{re}. Aguesseau had the blameworthy habit of keeping her husband waiting every evening about fifteen minutes after the dinner bell rang. Aguesseau utilized this quarter of an hour each day to write a work on jurisprudence, which he brought out, after some years, in four large quarto volumes.

Exploding Cornstalks.

Cornstalks being hollow, having no pith, and being divided inside every few inches into sections, are very combustible when dried in the sun, and the air confined within the hollow sections warmed by the external heat explodes with very considerable force, so that a canebreak on fire gives the idea of a continued roar of distant musketry.

Flatfish.

When the young flatfish hatches, its eyes are on the right and left sides of its head, as in ordinary fishes, but as development proceeds one eye migrates to the opposite side, so that in the adult both eyes are on the same side of the head, says J. V. Leech, in Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

Thistles Edible.

In Scotland, despite the "Wha daur meddle wi' me?" motto, the national emblem is often devoured by hungry youths. The thistle head, having been cut off, is shorn of its down, and the center eaten like cheese, which it somewhat resembles in taste and consistency.

Saving of Breath.

Wiseman—"To look at that Englishman you'd think he was a tramp, wouldn't you?" Jokely—"Well, I know for a fact that he hasn't a place that he can call home." Wiseman—"Nonsense! why his mansion in London is!" Jokely—"Sumptuous, yes; but he calls it 'ome.'"—Catholic Standard Times.

Slight Gain in Yield of Potato

In 55 Years Increase Has Been 4.4 Per Cent—High Grade Seed Is Urged.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

As potato growers, we are still in the "small potato" class, if we are to judge our standing by the gain in the average production per acre made in the United States in the last 55 years. Statistics gathered by the United States Department of Agriculture during the last half century show that the average production per acre during the five-year period, 1918-1922, was 37 bushels. Our grandfathers did almost as well 50 years ago, producing in the five-year period, 1868-1872, an average of 94.5 bushels to the acre, in other words our ability to grow potatoes has improved during these 55 years only enough to raise the average production by 4.4 per cent.

From 1868 to 1888 the average yield decreased steadily until it was but 74 bushels to the acre. Since that time the average yield has been steadily increasing until it is now the highest it has ever been. A number of reasons, or the decline in yields during the first half of this period are given by the department, the most important among them being the ravages of the Colorado potato beetle during the early period of its invasion of the eastern United States, the financial depressions of 1877 and 1893, which brought about a well-marked decline in agriculture in New England, New York and other heavy potato-producing areas, and a gradual depletion of soil fertility.

This downward tendency has been checked by a number of factors which have helped to increase the yield and average production per acre. Some of these beneficial factors are the influence of the agricultural experimental stations, agricultural colleges and the United States Department of Agriculture, through experimentations, demonstrations and extension work; the influence of the Bordeaux-mixture treatment in the control of fungous diseases affecting the potato; and the development of special potato-growing sections where the average yield is often from two to three times the general average for the United States.

Produce Better Seed.

Recently more attention has been given to the production of better seed by growers who are making a specialty of producing certified seed and seed of high quality. The use of high-grade seed, says the United States Department of Agriculture, would increase the returns from potato crop of the country by many millions of dollars. Good seed is one of the determining factors in the production of maximum crops of potatoes.

Selfmade and Homemade.

EDUCATION WEEK IN SCHOOLS

American Legion Will Have Generous Aid in Conducting Program Beginning November 18.

The observance of American Education week, a movement sponsored last year by the American Legion, which received whole-hearted co-operation from school, church and civic authorities, has again been designated, and will begin Sunday, November 18. At the time set, Legion posts throughout the country will unite in an effort from which practically every school child in the United States may profit.

The slogan for the 1923 observance is "Visit the Schools Today," and is aimed to enlist more interest in the institutions of learning on the part of the parents. Garland W. Powell, director of the National Americanism commission of the American Legion, has outlined a definite program for the movement, which is receiving endorsement of school authorities in every section of the country.

Each day of the week has been set aside for some particular consideration, according to the program offered by Mr. Powell. Beginning with Sunday, when pastors of all denominations will deliver sermons on the relationship of the church and the school, all phases and influences of school life will be touched. Monday, according to the program, is to be known as American Constitution day, when it is hoped that a concise idea of citizenship may be obtained by consideration of the instrument which made it possible. The observance of this day is especially calculated to reach parents of the students. Patriotic customs and methods will form the basis of the next day's observance. This is to include flag etiquette and similar practices of a patriotic nature which the Legion has played an important part in formulating. The fourth day is to be of particular significance to schools and to the teachers. It is to be known as "School and Teacher day," and topics of training of instructors, adequate pay for teachers and bettered facilities for schools. "End-illiteracy day" is the title suggested for Thursday. Formulation of plans to bring about study of reading and writing for both children and adults will be the aim for this day. One of the most vital features of the entire school program will be considered on Friday, when community development and its relationship to schools of the nation will be topics. On Saturday efforts will be given over to outlining a program for education of American youth along physical lines. Adequate playground facilities and general physical education will be urged.

Through efforts of the Legion and school authorities, who co-operated in the movement last year, many thousands visited the schools daily. The response to the observance was general, and the more ambitious program of 1923 is expected to bring about even a wider recognition of the possibilities of the Legion's program.

Support of the National Education association, state school authorities, and other educational leaders promise to make the Legion's education week of nation-wide import and benefit.

POST WILL CONDUCT SCHOOL

West Palm Beach (Fla.) Organization Is Financing Kindergarten; Extend Program in 1924.

The American Legion is performing a distinct public service in West Palm Beach, Fla., where the local post is financing and standing sponsor for a kindergarten. Seventy-five children will attend the Legion's school during the winter months.

The kindergarten is under supervision of the city school authorities, but could not have been opened except for the participation of some outside agency to furnish necessary funds. Realizing the necessity for the early training of the little folk, the Legion has taken steps to supply the need, and has employed two teachers.

It is anticipated that a waiting list will be maintained in order to care for the demands of parents. If the term is successful, the Legion may extend its program in 1924.

Again, Swat the Fly.

The number of bacteria capable of being carried by one house fly varies from 550 to 6,600,000. Hence a crusade against this pest which is most numerous during the season of the year when epidemics are likely to occur will play a great part in prevention and spread of any malady.

Tidiness of the Ant.

No creature is more tidy than an ant. A well-known authority says their toilet articles consist of coarse and fine toothed combs, hair brushes, sponges and even washes and soaps. Their combs, however, are the genuine article, and differ from ours mainly in that they are fastened to their legs.

Chickens' Neglected Duty.

Laura Jane was in the habit of going with her mother to feed the chickens. Sometimes she would find a pretty feather in the park. One day we went and she could not find a feather and she exclaimed: "Why, mother, the chickens did not lay me a feather today."

See Serpents Really Exist.
Although many of us may have an idea that sea serpents exist nowhere but in fiction, that is not the case, and of all snakes they are the most venomous. In tropical waters they are vastly numerous, especially in the Indian ocean, where they are often seen literally by hundreds swimming at the surface of the water. They are six to eight feet long, very fierce and will commonly attack human beings. Their bodies are flat and almost wholly filled by the lungs.

"Raining Cats and Dogs."
Old myths from Norway contain weird tales of the influence of cats and dogs on the weather. As the cat represented the rain, the dog was supposed to be the wind that accompanied the rain. Therefore, to "rain cats and dogs" means to rain and blow, says the Detroit News. The dog and wolf were attendants upon Odin, the storm god. In old German prints wind is represented by the head of a dog or a wolf from which issue great blasts. English sailors still say that a rain comes when the ship's cat is unusually frisky. Witches were believed to assume the form of cats and ride upon the storm.

Crocodile, Sacred Animal.
Where the river is wide the crocodiles are most numerous and here sometimes one may see them fully exposed on the banks. To the Banknese the crocodiles are sacred animals and they do not hunt them except when they have killed a human being. Then the monster has to pay heavily for it. Usually a trap is set near one of the tributaries in the vicinity where the accident occurred and a piece of monkey flesh with barbed hook hidden inside is used as bait. If the animal is caught it is cut into pieces, which are used as manure for the fields.

Many United States Flags.
The United States has had a different flag for every war. The flag of the Revolution had 13 stars in a circular blue field and seven red and six white stripes. During the War of 1812, the flag had 15 stars and 15 stripes. At the time of the Mexican war, the flag had 13 stripes and 20 stars. When the Civil war broke out, the flag was the same except that it had 34 stars. Before the Civil war ended two more stars were added. The Spanish-American war flag had 45 stars. The flag used in the World war had 48.

Insects in Winter.
Spiders usually spend the winter in the egg state, the mother inclosing the ball of eggs in a beautiful silken bag, and hiding it wherever she can get a chance. Many insects spend the winter in the larva or worm state. Still others spend the winter in the chrysalis state. These chrysalides may be seen attached to the twigs of bushes, or under the bark of trees, or imbedded in decayed wood, while the change goes on which transforms the crawling worm into the beautiful winged creature.

Judicial Remark.
Magistrate—"You are convicted of pig stealing. Now, if this sort of thing is allowed to continue, we shall none of us be safe!"—London Answers.

AMUSEMENTS

It is not often that a screen production is received as enthusiastically as was "The Rustle of Silk," which had its premier at the Met theater last night. This is a Herbert Brenon Paramount production, with Betty Compson and Conway Tearle featured in the leading roles.

Mr. Tearle, in the role of Arthur Fallaroy, England's Colonial secretary and next in line for the post of Prime Minister, is the victim of a plot by one of his enemies, the owner of a newspaper to ruin his reputation by the publication of several love letters of the existence of which he is unaware. He decides to give up politics grant his fickle wife the divorce she has long demanded, and marry little Lola de Breze (Betty Compson), a smart hairdresser, with whom he has fallen in love, or her part Iola worships Fallaroy, but will not consent to his forsaking his country in a time of need, and it is with her encouragement that he wages a winning fight and becomes prime minister.

Miss Compson, in this picture, may well be credited with the best performance of her screen career and Conway Tearle, the leading man, by reason of flawless work is deserving of the greatest praise. The supporting cast, which is a thoroughly capable one, includes Cyril Chadwick, Anna Q. Nilsson, Leo White, Charles Stevenson and Tempe Pigott.

"Plug Hat" Totem Pole.
On top of one of the grotesquely carved totem poles of the Alaskan Indians there is a figure of a white man in stovepipe hat and frock coat. The art of totem pole carving consists almost always in the representation of animals and the part they played in the old myths. But this totem pole represents a certain Indian's claim to fame; either based on his own experience or founded on his ancestry, or both. It is a sort of combined distinguished conduct medal and coat-of-arms. In this case, an old woman belonging to the house in front of which the pole stands was the first person to see a white man. The figure representing what she saw was accordingly put on her pole.

Geysers Furnish Power.
Along Little Sulphur creek, near Healdsburg, Cal., north of San Francisco, the ground is pock-marked for ten miles with geyser holes. A company has dug two wells each 220 feet deep. Deeper than this their drills refused to go. An eight-inch casing was sunk in each hole to bring up the steam generated, and this was forced through three-quarter-inch pipe into a steam turbine. The pressure of the steam on the three-fourths-inch pipe aggregates 70 pounds to the square inch. With a five-inch vent, the pressure aggregates 30 pounds. The turbine through which the steam from the two wells is forced generates 1,500 kilowatts. An extensive power development project is being planned.

Giant's Causeway.
According to legend, the Giant's Causeway was the beginning of a road to be constructed by giants, from Ireland to Scotland. It projects from the north coast of Antrim, Ireland, into the north channel, seven miles. It consists of 40,000 vertical, closely fitting columns of basalt rock, varying from 15 to 13 inches, and is formed into three sections, known as Little, Middle and Honeycomb Causeway. The "Wishing Chair," with two arms and a back and the "Lady's Fan," are on the Middle Causeway. At the starting point is the "Giant's Loom," to the left, the "Giant's Chair." An electric tramway now connects the town of Potrush with the "Causeway."

Resignation Benefits.

True resignation, which always brings with it confidence that unchangeable goodness will make even the disappointment of our hopes and the contradictions of life conducive to some benefit, casts a grave but tranquil light over the prospect of even a tollsome and troubled life.—Humboldt.

EASTERN STAR

Birthday Anniversary Fittingly Celebrated—Past Officers Confer Degrees.

One of the largest and most enjoyable meetings in the history of Circleville chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, was that held Tuesday evening in the chapter rooms in the Mason's temple.

The occasion was the celebration of the twenty-sixth anniversary of the order in this city and one hundred and fifty or more members and visitors
witnessed the exemplification of the work and the ceremony in connection
with the birthday observance.

The degrees of the order were conferred on two candidates in splendid fashion by a corps of officers made up past matrons and a past patron. These past officers demonstrated the fact
that time has not dimmed their recollections of the ceremonies of the work
nor their knowledge of the lessons
taught.

The officers were: Worthy Matron, Carrie A. Patton; worthy patron
Leslie D. May; associate matron, Eva
Black; conductress, Mae B. Tolbert;
assistant conductress, Nellie Weagly;
marshal, Amy Nickerson; secretary,
Ella Finkel; treasurer, Essie Reber;
chaplain, Belle Gearhart; Ada, Lucy
B. Price; Ruth, Jennie Sweyer; Esther
Mary Nending; Martha, Mary Boggs;
Electa, Irene Newton; organists, Nellie Weaver and Laura Bentley.

Many visitors were present from Chillicothe, Washington C. H., and Williamsport. A feature of the meeting was the singing of solos by Mrs.
E. K. Johnson and Mrs. M. B. Trout.
Mrs. Paul Keiser was the accompanist for the former and Mrs. George H.
Bentley for the latter.

After the work of the evening had
been concluded an impressive birthday program was rendered at the altar, after which all repaired to the Red
room where refreshments of sandwiches, coffee, cake and ice cream
were served.

In Memoriam.

Editor Union-Herald:—Lucinda El-
len Crites, daughter of Henry and Margaret States Van Wey, was born July 9, 1840, in Madison township, Fairfield county, Ohio, and departed this life
December 25, 1923, aged 83 years, five months and 16 days.

On March 31, 1864, she was united in marriage to Charles R. Crites, who died January 1, 1879. To this union were born two children, Miss Anna
and Durbin. Besides son and daughter she leaves to mourn their loss a
host of relatives and friends.

Mrs. Crites was baptized in infancy
by Rev. Henry Willard, of sainted memory. She was converted in early years and united with the Hopewell
M. E. church at Clearport, at which place she still held her membership.
Owing to ill health Mrs. Crites for a number of years was unable to attend
church, but she never lost faith in her God. She lived a consecrated and devout life up to the very last. Thanksgiving and praise to God her Father
were among the last words from her lips. She is now reaping the reward
of a faithful life.

The funeral service was held at the home in Stoutsville Thursday afternoon, December 27, at 2 o'clock. Rev.
R. S. Beaver officiated. The hymns:
"Abide With Me," "No Night in
Heaven" and "Nearer, My God to Thee" were read by Rev. J. M. Wenrich of Columbus. Interment was in Maple Hill cemetery.

JAMES DELONG DEAD.

James D. Delong died at the home
of W. H. Brown, 565 East Franklin street, Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, after an illness of two weeks
of pneumonia. Mr. Delong was born in Lancaster August 29, 1877, and was the son of Gabriel H. and Anna Littelrel Delong. He was a veteran of the Spanish-American war. One sister, Mrs. W. H. Brown, of this city, survives.

The funeral services will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Brown Friday morning at ten o'clock. Rev. M.
R. White will officiate. Interment in Forest cemetery.

—A stillborn daughter was born to James B. and Isabel Brinks Cunningham in Walnut township Tuesday evening. Burial in the McDill cemetery.

SPLIT CAUSED BY BONUS ISSUE

Futile Parley Held With Leaders of Soldier Bloc.

LATTER SEEKS EARLY ACTION

Longworth Declares Party Caucus Will Vote to Continue Consideration of Tax Reduction Until It Is Completed and Thereafter Take Up Bonus—Insurgents to Fight It Out on Floor of the House.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The Republican majority in the house split on the question of early action or indefinite delay of the soldier bonus.

After a conference with leaders of the soldier bloc, who have forced a call for a party caucus Thursday night to pass on a proposal to order the bonus bill reported by the ways and means committee, Representative Longworth, the Republican leader, made this statement:

"I told the gentlemen that we had made plans to beat them, and we are going to beat them. There's no doubt about that. Our motion will be to instruct the ways and means committee to continue consideration of the tax reduction legislation until it is completed, and thereafter take up the bonus. The majority will be so big, I don't think there will be much of a fight."

Representative Royal C. Johnson of South Dakota, who, with Representatives Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, and A. Platt Andrew of Massachusetts, participated in the conference with Longworth, retorted with this reply:

"The house is going to be given an opportunity to vote on the bonus bill before Feb. 1. We will present a resolution at the caucus Thursday night instructing the ways and means committee to bring out the bonus immediately after the administrative features of the tax bill, now under consideration, are completed. If defeated on that resolution, we will work under the new rule coming out of the rules committee on Jan. 14, providing for a workable plan to discharge a committee from further consideration of a bill which a majority of the house deems to be unduly delayed. If this course proves to be necessary, we will file a motion to discharge the ways and means committee from further consideration of the bonus measure, the moment the new rule is adopted, which is certain. This will bring the issue to a test before Feb. 1."

Mr. Longworth asserted he was prompted in his position solely by party policy. The merits of the bonus are not involved, he said. He claims not to be opposing the bonus, but, on the other hand, believes it would have a better chance of passing under his plan than under the plan of the soldier bloc.

Longworth explained that under his motion the tax bill would not only be reported out of the ways and means committee, but acted upon by the house before the bonus would come up. Moreover, the adoption of his motion by the caucus would carry with it no promise of favorable action on the bonus. That would be a matter for the decision of the committee and the house.

Mr. Longworth thought the ways and means committee should finish consideration of the tax bill not later than Feb. 15, and possibly as early as Feb. 1. Chairman Green has said the administrative features will be finished by Jan. 15.

STANDS ON MESSAGE

Coolidge's Views Unchanged by the Bok Peace Plan.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The so-called Bok peace plan has failed signally to influence the views held by President Coolidge. This was made plain in the president's behalf at the white house following the meeting of the cabinet.

Mr. Coolidge, it was stated officially, had nothing to add to the opinions expressed in his annual message to congress. In that message the president asserted emphatically that so far as the league was concerned, "the incident is closed." The United States, he pointed out, sees no reason to limit its own freedom and independence of action by joining it. "We shall do well to recognize this basis in all national affairs and govern ourselves accordingly," he added.

Reference to the words used by the president in his annual message emphasized the importance of the white house statement that Mr. Coolidge's views remained unchanged by the Bok proposal.

VICE DISTRICT CLOSED

Butler Makes Good His Threat to Clean Up Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Jan. 9.—Philadelphia's notorious vice district was closed tight as a drum last night. Brigadier General Butler, late of the United States marines, has made good his threat to clean up the town in 48 hours. How long the district will stay closed is problematical. It has been shut up before.

Lieutenant John Holton toured the underworld and put the padlock on about 20 saloons and two disorderly houses. Five gambling men and seven gambling girls were arrested and gambling tables were smashed with an ax. Otherwise there was little activity in the campaign to purify the city. Practically all the hundreds of questionable places in the underworld closed of their own accord.

DONAHEY WILL SEEK A SECOND TERM

Cox Still Favors Going Into the League of Nations.

Columbus, Jan. 9.—Former Governor James M. Cox, who made the principal address at the Jackson day banquet here last night, made no reference to any political ambitions he may entertain for 1924.

Cox declared in his speech that he still favored association with the league of nations, saying: "I am in favor of associating ourselves with the league of nations, under conditions that will meet every conscientious objection to past proposals. For four years the American conspirators, from whose sins untold millions have suffered, have vainly wished that the league of nations would die. That would, in their view, bring a sweeping vindication. It is a terrible indictment that those in control of our government have shared this unholy desire, and yet the facts support such a charge. But the league doesn't die. It continues to confound its enemies. Let the reactionaries, on the one hand, go their way serving Mammon as of yore. Let the radicals, if such a movement is forming, make their own track. The Democratic party is safely progressive, and, at heart, it still believes in the practical humanitarianism of Woodrow Wilson."

This declaration was vociferously applauded by the 1,000 banqueters. Governor Donahey also brought the assemblage to its feet when he announced in a short speech his candidacy for a second term. He said: "One year ago today, the mantle of Democracy, worn by Governors Campbell, Pattison, Harmon and Cox, was thrown across my shoulders, and I expect to return it to the Democratic party of Ohio three years from today, clean and unclipped."

Short addresses also were made by former Governors James E. Campbell and Judson Harmon. Chairman Cordell Hull of the Democratic national committee sent a telegram in which he expressed regret at his inability to be present.

UNDER CONTROL OF MILITARY

Williamson County, Ill., Scene of New Disturbance.

SHERIFF FEARED OUTBREAK

Present Situation Developed When Citizens, Said to Be Affiliated With the Klan, Assisted Officers in Liquor Raids in Which Hundreds of Arrests Were Made—Rival Organization Formed and Clash Feared.

Marion, Ill., Jan. 9.—Williamson county, scene of the "Herron massacre" of 18 months ago, and more recently of war between klan and anti-klan factions, is under military control.

Three companies of state militia, rushed here when Sheriff Galligan notified Adjutant General Black that rioting threatened and the situation had gotten beyond his control, arrived during the night and now are in command of strategic positions.

Incident to the call for the militia was the trial of Glen Young, prohibition enforcement officer. He was charged with assault growing out of a raid on an alleged bootlegger establishment. The case went to a jury yesterday. In two minutes the jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

Sheriff Galligan explained he had asked for troops because he could not afford to take a chance of a repetition of the "Herron massacre," when a score of miners were slain during the miners' strike more than a year ago. A state investigation resulted in condemnation of Melvin Thaxton, then sheriff of Williamson county, for failure to call for troops when he saw trouble developing between the union and nonunion miners.

The present situation in Williamson county developed when citizens, said to be affiliated with the Ku Klux Klan, caused prohibition enforcement officers to come into the county and conduct raids. The officers deputized between 300 and 400 citizens, many of whom were armed, when the raids were carried out.

The first raid was staged Dec. 22, when posses headed by the enforcement officers swept over the county, making wholesale arrests. W. A. Peters, a police magistrate and a member of a raiding party at West Frankfort, a small mining town, was shot and wounded and two foreigners were wounded when they resisted arrest. One hundred and thirty-six arrests were made. The second raid was made on Jan. 5, when 50 arrests were made. A report that the Ku Klux Klan had contributed $3,000 for law enforcement in the county was denied, but it inflamed those opposed to the hooded organization.

The raids were conducted without the knowledge of Sheriff Galligan. The klan staged numerous parades in different parts of the county and there quickly sprang up an anti-klan organization, known as the Knights of the Flaming Circle. Clashes between the organizations were narrowly averted on several occasions.

Sheriff Galligan told Adjutant General Black that the raids conducted by the federal officers and citizens had become more than mere law enforcement raids. He charged irresponsible persons had seized upon them to burn buildings and rob. Only the presence of troops could restore order.

EUROPE BLIZZARD-SWEPT

Heavy Blanket of Snow Spreads from Norway to Italy.

Berlin, Jan. 9.—Europe is in the grip of the severest winter weather of a generation, which has spread a heavy blanket of snow from the top of Norway to the tip of Sicily. It has packed the rivers and seas with ice, disorganized rail traffic and shipping, and flooded large sections of some of the world's biggest cities. Even many perpetually warm places have been swept with damaging hurricanes. Meteorologists report that Italy has not seen such cold weather for several centuries. Even the canals and lagoons of Venice are covered with ice. Trains in all Europe are running with great delays because they have to battle the heavy snows. Shipping in the Baltic has been practically paralyzed. The harbors at Petrograd and Riga are closed entirely and others are kept partly open with great difficulty.

Boy Dies of Burns.

Columbus, Jan. 9.—Joe Thomas Brown, 7, died from burns received from an open gas stove.

MRS. LEONARD G. WOODS

Vice Chairman of Republican National Committee.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Wealthy Manufacturer Held.

Canton, Jan. 9.—Louis E. Griffith, wealthy manufacturer, was arrested here in connection with the murder of pretty Ruth Hunter, 19, whose lifeless body was discovered beside an unfrequented road three miles from this city. Griffith is held on a technical charge of being a "suspicious person," while county and city authorities planned to question him further regarding his actions on the night of the murder of Miss Hunter. Griffith is 32 and married. This is the second time Griffith has been taken into custody.

Aged Woman Missing.

Lima, O., Jan. 9.—Mrs. William Mohler, 68, mysteriously disappeared from her home in Bluffton, this county, more than a week ago. Mohler, who is 78, said he went to Fostoria on business and when he returned a week ago his wife was gone. He could give no reason for her leaving. They had been married 40 years. Officials are planning a nation-wide search.

Shot Through Head.

Toledo, Jan. 9.—With a bullet wound through his head, Arlington Elliott, 30, partner with his brother, William, in a garage at Holland, O., 12 miles west of here, was found lying on the floor near a cash register in the office of the garage. The coroner thinks robbery was the motive for the slaying.

Killed by Fumes.

Akron, O., Jan. 9.—William M. Bender, 56, is dead and his 15-year-old son is in a critical condition from fumes from a gas stove. Bender was found dead in bed and the son unconscious. Fumes from a flueless stove, used to heat the home, caused Bender's death, according to physicians.

Ban on Gambling.

Cleveland, Jan. 9.—Gambling in Cleveland, in whatever form, book-making or slot machines, must go. Safety Director Edwin Barry issued this ultimatum in the presence of Police Chief Jacob Graul, following a conference with City Manager W. R. Hopkins.

Police Chief Reinstated.

Newark, O., Jan. 9.—Charles B. Hager, chief of police, suspended recently by Mayor W. H. N. Stevens, klan candidate, has resumed his duties. Mayor Stevens dropped the charges against Hager and notified him his suspension was lifted.

Result of a Brawl.

Steubenville, O., Jan. 9.—Baba Laka, 43, Serbian, was shot through the head as the result of a brawl at his home. Mele Bunda, 40, a guest at Laka's celebration, is held by the police.

Labor Party's Program.

London, Jan. 9.—Ramsay MacDonald, Labor party leader in parliament, in a speech to his followers, said: "If the Labor party is given power we are going to be careful. We will try to settle the difficulties that beset the nation, Europe and the world. We want peace and trade from the coast of Japan to the coast of Ireland. With the peace forces of all sections of Europe we will do our best to complete the structure of the league of nations and use it unreservedly to secure international justice."

FAVORS TAX CUT AND THE BONUS

Copeland Sees Much in Mellon Bill to Support.

SUBMITS NEW BONUS PLAN

New York Senator Proposes Sixty-Year Bond Issue to Raise Money Necessary to Meet Payment of $1,500,000,000 Bonus—Favors Single Payment of the Whole Sum to the Former Service Men.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York, in his maiden speech in the senate, pledged support to a tax reduction bill and warned his colleagues that failure to pass the soldier bonus along with tax reduction will not be favorably regarded by the American people.

The senator declared there was much in the Mellon bill which he would support. The idea of tax reduction, he said, is not a partisan one, and he expressed the belief that it will be possible to frame a measure which will provide for reasonable tax reduction and at the same time make provision for payment of the bonus.

Senator Copeland said he had received an enormous number of letters from persons in New York state urging him to support the Mellon plan. The real purpose of the plan, he asserted, is to reduce "the surtaxes on the rich," adding: "The rest of us, as usual, under a Republican administration, get only the crumbs."

The senator submitted an entirely new plan for the bonus, the chief feature of which was a cash payment of the whole sum at once in a single payment. He estimated the amount which should be paid the ex-service men at $1,464,777,262, on the accepted basis of $1 a day for each day of home service and $1.25 a day for all who saw foreign service, to which the senator said, he would add an additional 25 cents for those in the home service, placing all on an equality. The number entitled to receive the bonus the senator estimated at 2,435,000 serving overseas and 2,244,853 serving at home.

To raise the money necessary to meet the payment of a little less than $1,500,000,000 the senator proposed a 60-year bond issue, issuing $1,500,000,000 at once, or if the bonus is paid in five equal installments, in issues of $300,000,000 annually for five years. The total interest cost at the high rate of 5 per cent would be less than $75,000,000 per year. Twenty-five millions paid annually to retire the bonds, the senator pointed out, would make a total expense to the country the first year for interest and principal of $100,000,000, and this would decrease annually till the debt was wiped out at the end of 60 years. The argument that such a bond issue would upset the treasury, Senator Copeland said, was ridiculous.

LABOR MEMBERS EXULTANT

House of Commons Reassembles for First Time Since Election.

London, Jan. 9.—Squad after squad of labor members marched exultantly into the house of commons when the house re-assembled for the first time since the December elections. Turbulent Scottish socialists celebrated the triumphs of labor by hurling taunts at the Tories sitting glumly in the government benches. The biggest display of "red" was introduced by the supporters of John Scurr, who escorted him to commons in a huge automobile coach bedecked with the flaming color of revolt. They came from the east end of London, where Scurr was elected, and they terrorized timid stockbrokers as driving through the financial section they vociferously belittled the "red flag" and the "international." There was general cheering in commons when Premier Baldwin and Ramsay MacDonald, the Labor leader, both smiling, gripped hands on the floor of the house. The only business transacted at the opening session was the election of the speaker, J. H. Whiteley.

Fire Trucks In Collision.

Columbus, Jan. 9.—Fred O. Dalton, fireman, attached to No. 6 engine company, lost both legs when two fire trucks collided while responding to an alarm. Dalton was riding on the rear of the hose wagon when it suddenly slowed down, due to traffic. The pump truck of the same engine, which was following, rammed into the hose wagon, the heavy steel bumper crushing Dalton's legs.

LEGAL ACTION LIKELY

Bok World Peace Contestants Allege Unfair Methods.

New York, Jan. 9.—Dissatisfaction has been caused by what is characterized as unfair methods on the part of the jury of award in awarding the $100,000 prize in the Bok world peace contest.

Mandamus proceedings probably will be brought within 48 hours to compel the jury of award to continue in session until every member has read every one of the 22,000 odd plans submitted in the contest. This, it is declared, is required by the conditions of the contest. The jury of award admittedly has read nothing more than summaries or digests of a limited number of the plans that survived the process of elimination applied at the headquarters of the American peace award. The complaint is made that Elihu Root, chairman of the jury of award, read the winning plan and nothing more.

The claim is that the $100,000 prize has been illegally and unfairly awarded, and that until a legal and proper award is made every person who entered the contest has an interest in that $100,000.

Formal complaint is being planned by some contestants for submission to United States Attorney Hayward, charging violations of the mail laws in the conduct of the peace prize contest. Asked what action he will take if such a complaint is placed before him, Colonel Howard said: "I will take appropriate action if complaints are submitted to me."

TO AIR KLAN ACTIVITIES

Ballots Ordered From Texas In Mayfield-Peddy Contest.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Forty deputy sergeants-at-arms will be named by a subcommittee of the senate committee on privileges and elections to gather up in Texas and ship to Washington all the ballot boxes, ballots, tally sheets and other paraphernalia used in the Mayfield-Peddy senatorial election of November, 1922.

This decision was the first move in the hearing of what promises to be the "Newberry case" of the present congress. The contest also will turn the spotlight on the alleged political activities of the Ku Klux Klan, since the klan is named in an alleged conspiracy to obtain political control of Texas.

This, for the first time, klan activities will come under serious congressional investigation and the country will learn just how far-reaching its political operations extend to the point of controlling elections and dominating government.

The subcommittee voted to have the ballots brought to Washington and recounted under the jurisdiction of the committee to ascertain just what the ballots will show in connection with the contest.

Robbed by Bandits.

Cleveland, Jan. 9.—Two armed bandits, tying up Max Rosenzweig, Lakewood haberdasher, robbed him of $600 in cash, a $300 diamond ring and $3,000 in merchandise and escaped in an automobile.

PENITENT UNCLE

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(© 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"AND so, after all these years, I am trying to make up for my indifference by this method of reparation. The money is yours to do with as you desire. When you receive it I shall be dead and beyond the reach of thanks."

"Your belatedly penitent great-uncle, Jonathan Benjamin Cowles."

This was the conclusion of the letter which Jimmy Stiles several days ago had signed with a flourishing signature and then reread with grinning satisfaction. How tickled Mary Louise would be! And how unlikely ever to discover the hoax.

Now he sat at his desk and wondered whether Mary Louise had yet cashed the inclosed certificate of deposit.

She had come to visit her aunt, who was matron of the County Home, where Jimmy was one of many lonely, blue-overalled and aproned orphans.

Mary Louise's mother, because of whose illness she had been sent away, died during her absence and she stayed on with her aunt. And when matrimony with a widower of small means and considerable family claimed the estimable matron, Mary Louise still lingered.

Jimmy became her companion in all the playground squabbles, nor did the marvelous piece of luck which befell him when he was fifteen make him forget her.

Jimmy rose rapidly—graduated brilliantly from high school—went into a lawyer's office daytimes and continued study at evening school. Ultimately he entered the bar and became an attorney with a reputation before he was thirty.

Meanwhile Mary Louise had been "bound out" to a lonely farmer's wife. Growing attached to her, the woman had done more than the stipulated clothing and feeding of the child—had taught her what she could of grammar, geography and similar rudiments of learning.

A summer boarder had taken an interest and lent her books, not only during her stay but for many months afterward.

These changes had meant separation for the boy and girl, during which the memory of each grew dim to the other but did not utterly fade. And at

Drift Harbor, that wonder spot of ocean beach and vivid sunset and riotous surf, their paths converged once more.

Signing his name in the Drift Harbor house register, Jimmy looked up from the final flourish of his signature—James W. Stiles, Boston—straight into a pair of well-remembered soft blue eyes.

"You! Mary Louise!"

Yes, it was Mary Louise, who sometimes filled in at the hotel, which stood a mile or two from her adopted home, in various capacities from that of clerk to waitress.

"Are you happy, Mary Louise?" he asked one day.

Mary Louise threw him a questioning glance from beneath her curly lashes. "Just now," she said ingenuously. "But winters—oh, Jimmy, it is very lonely. And—and I see no future. If only I could afford to go to the city and have a couple of years at a normal school. Then—oh, just think, I might be able to teach!"

She sighed blissfully, as though teaching were an achievement too heavenly to contemplate. "I dream nights of what I would do with a thousand dollars. That's my favorite air castle in Spain."

That winter Jimmy unexpectedly won a case which netted him an even thousand and the sight of the check brought back to him the words of Mary Louise.

An intense longing surged within him to help her out even as years ago he had been helped by the kindly rector. But handing over a sum of that amount to an unrelated young lady presented a problem.

Suddenly the idea of creating a fictitious great-uncle occurred to him—a great-uncle who would exist but for a moment on a sheet of paper, but long enough to bequeath to Mary Louise a thousand-dollar legacy.

The letter had been written and sent and now Jimmy sat and dreamed in his office of its reception by a blue-eyed girl in a lonely farmhouse near Drift Harbor.

And as he dreamed the door of his office opened. At sight of a slim figure Jimmy sprang to his feet.

"You fraud!" cried a sweet voice.

"My great-uncle Jimmy!"

Jimmy swallowed. "How—er—why—er—"

"Well, partly because I read in the papers of your thousand-dollar fee in the Hitchcock case, but mostly because only one person in the world makes the funny 'J's' that you do. I had only to compare the 'J' of Jonathan Benjamin Cowles with the 'J' on the hotel register to have my suspicions confirmed. Of course I couldn't—"

"Mary Louise," interrupted Jimmy firmly, "hand over that certificate!" And when she did so he folded it evenly and slipped it into his pocketbook.

"What an idiot I was to give you a chance to go out of my sight again!" And his face wore the expression of one upon whom a great light has broken suddenly. "Come straight into my arms, my darling!"

And Mary Louise came.

The Pythian Games.

One of the four great festivals of ancient Greece, celebrated every fifth year, in honor of Apollo, in the Crissaeum plain near Delphi was the Pythian games. They were instituted, according to tradition, by Apollo, in commemoration of his victory over the serpent Python—whence the name. These festivals were at first limited to singing, with cithern accompaniment; but afterward they came to include athletics, horse racing and contests in poetry and art. The victors were crowned with a laurel wreath, or presented with a palm branch. The Pythian games were continued until 384 A. D.

Would Spare Grandma's Feelings.

The other day my aunt was writing to her mother, and she said to her little boy, who had recently learned a few of his letters at school: "Gene, don't you want to write your letters to grandma and show her how much you have learned?" Gene thought a few minutes and then replied: "O, mother, grandma is so old and it's been a long time since she went to school, she probably wouldn't know what they are."—Exchange.

No Need to Repeat It.

Raymond had played until he was overly tired, and when he went upstairs to bed his mother called after him not to forget his prayers. Listening, she overheard the following, uttered in a sleepy voice: "Dear God: I'm awfully tired; so my prayer tonight is the same as last night and you remember what that was, Amen."

About Wood Engraving.

Wood engravings of high class are made almost exclusively of boxwood, and the large blocks are made of small pieces fastened together. The engraving is done across the end of the grain. Japanese wood prints are made on lengthwise sections of cherry wood parallel to the grain.

His Fate.

The young man brought some verses to his father. "Father, I have written poems." "What! Let me see them instantly." The father read them over carefully, the tears slowly welling to his eyes as he did so. Finishing the last one, he threw down the manuscript, folded the boy to his breast and sobbed: "Oh, my poor, poor son!" "Are they so bad as that, father?" "Bad! They are excellent. They are real poetry. My boy, my boy, you will starve to death!"—Indianapolis Star.

Culpable Parents.

Charge the growing up unfit to the parent who breaks the spirit of the child, or cuddles it into egotism and temperamental nervous bankruptcy and lies to it and gives it the deadly homemade examples of violent quarrelling, lie-a-bed laziness and whining. I have raised Alredale terriers. Anybody will admit an Alredale terrier is not the sensitive organism a child is, and anybody who has raised good Alredales knows that one would ruin a litter by the cruelties under the name of discipline or the petting under the name of devotion which are dealt out to human offspring.—Saturday Evening Post.

The Channel Islands.

The name Channel Islands is applied to a group of small islands in the English channel, lying off the northwest coast of France. Their total area is about 75 square miles, and their population numbers about 100,000. The principal islands are Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney and Sark. Jersey, Alderney and Guernsey are famous for their cattle. The "Channel Islands" were anciently an appanage of the duchy of Normandy, and have belonged to England since the Conquest. The inhabitants still speak the old Norman-French language.

My neighbor's little four-year-old girl is very old-fashioned. I was cutting off some dead limbs from my tree across the street from her and she was watching me. WONDERFUL FEAT OF NATURE

Certain Seeds May Be Subjected to Intense Heat and Still Retain Their Vitality.

Amazing ways of enabling her children to survive extraordinary hardships have been devised by nature. None of her inventions has more wonderful powers of endurance than the seed by means of which plant life is carried on.

You may subject certain seeds for hours to a temperature of 100 degrees below freezing point, you may heat them until they are hot enough to burn your hand, yet they will not lose their vitality.

Great fires often rage through the forests, destroying mile after mile of giant trees. When the fire has passed there remains nothing but charred stumps and flame-scarred, smoldering soil. Yet within a few months the whole district will be green with the first leaves of the tiny seedling trees.

Recent tests to discover the heat at ground level during a forest fire disclosed that it was from 1,000 to 1,500 degrees Fahrenheit. The fires move so quickly that this intense heat lasts for only a minute or less at any spot.

Various tree seeds were then tried to see what heat they could resist. It was found that fir cones could withstand a temperature of 1,200 degrees Fahrenheit for eight minutes without losing their vitality.

FEAST OF SAINT MICHAEL

Festival Was First Appointed by Pope Felix III in the Year 480.

Michaelmas, the Feast of Saint Michael and All Angels, occurs September 29. The festival was first appointed by Pope Felix III in the year 480. In the Greek church it did not originate earlier than the Twelfth century. It was an old custom in England to mark the day by electing civil magistrates and that of guardian angels of whom Saint Michael was reported the prince.

A more famous custom is that of eating roast goose, the origin of which has long exercised the wisdom of antiquaries. The traditional Michaelmas goose has been traced at least as far back as the tenth year of Edward IV and it is said that one of the strongest objections of the English commonalty to the reformation of the calendar was based on the confusion which would follow if Michaelmas day was not celebrated when stubble geese are in their perfection.

There is an old proverb that "If you eat goose on Michaelmas day, you will never want money all the year round."—Detroit News.

Japan's Expert Top-Spinners.

The pastime of top-spinning is carried by the Japanese to a point of great perfection. The tops used by them are of delightful variety, both in size and construction. The largest of all tops is more than a foot in diameter, and proportionately heavy. Some are solid; others contain a flock of little ones, which fly out when the top is lifted, and spin away by themselves. Others pull into a spiral or ladder of successive tops. One draws up into a lantern, and spins cheerily in that form.

The spinners balance their tops on any kind of surface, round or flat, on the edge of a fan, the sharpest Japanese sword, along a thin cord, and after some moments of unconcerned spinning there it is tossed on the table, with apparent carelessness, where it goes on whirling.

One of the most delicate performances consists of spinning a top in the left hand, up the left arm, round the back of the neck, and down into the palm of the right hand.

Self-Appreciation.

Humor and self-criticism, it has often been pointed out, go together; a sense of humor is an antidote for conceit. Victor Hugo had no sense of humor, and the complacency with which he looked back upon his career arose from a conceit that was even more colossal than his genius.

Late in life some of his friends were talking with him and, of course, about him. One said, "Streets ought to be named after him."

Another remarked, "Streets? Paris ought to change its name and be called Victor Hugo."

Another added scornfully, "Paris? Paris, after such a great man? No, indeed! France ought to change its name and the whole country be called Victor Hugo."

The great writer then lifted his head and, with Jovian dignity, spoke in tones of quiet, solemn conviction: "That will come in time."

Bed Time for Flowers.

Different flowers have different closing times. The common water-lily retires about four o'clock in the afternoon, the daisy and buttercup much later in the evening. Tulips and crocuses, being susceptible to climatic changes, go to bed as soon as the heat of the day is over and the evening chill sets in. The goat's beard, something like a dandelion, and growing in tall grass, shuts up its flowers at noon, and does not open them again till the next morning. For this reason the flower is sometimes called "John-go-to-bed-at-noon." The scarlet pimpernel, found in most British cornfields, shuts its petals when the sky gets dark and cloudy. Thus, it has earned for itself the name of "Shepherd's Weather Glass."

Serge, Twill for Chic New Outfit

Navy Blue, or Neutral Beige and Gray Popular for Fall Wear.

Come what will in the world of fashion, there is no such thing as oblivion for the tailored frock of serge or twill. In navy blue or neutral beige and gray, declares a fashion correspondent in the Kansas City Star. It holds its own season after season, and the remarkable thing is that designers contrive to give it a distinctly new aspect each time it appears.

This year a certain variation in details is noted, with much attention paid to those suggested by the modes of China. This, perhaps, is more in the introduction of color and in touches of embroidery or the application of narrow bands of bright trimming around the neck and down the side, just as one sees in the Chinese coats.

It is probably by the clever use of color that navy blue frocks of this season are distinguished from those of last.

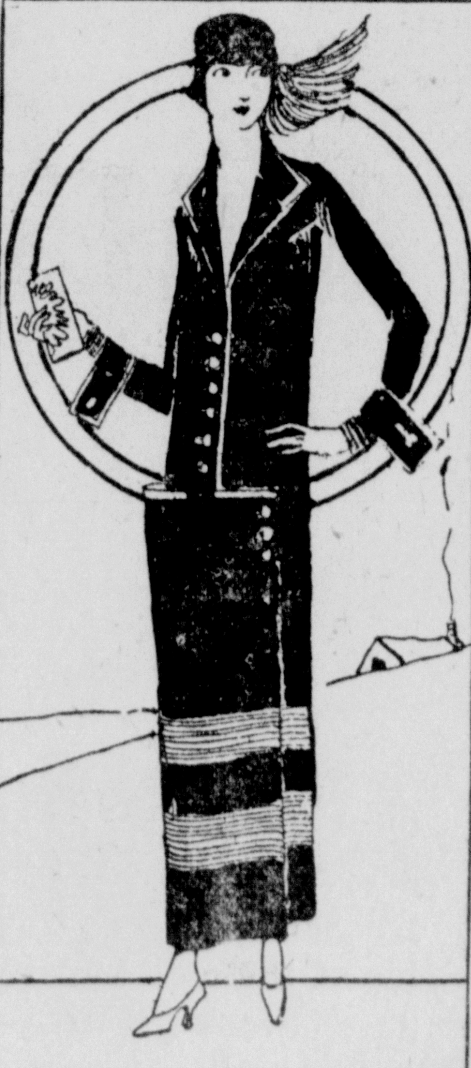

In line they are straight and slim, with wrist-length sleeves which are sometimes tight, but quite as often bell-shaped, with dainty undersleeves of net or muslin.

For practical purposes nothing takes the place of a dark blue gown, and with the addition of a well chosen hat, shoes and stockings of correct lines and colors, and a scarf of really good fur, it constitutes a street costume that leaves nothing to be desired in the way of chic and good taste.

Afternoon and dinner gowns of lace and velvet are shown with cape or full-length Jenny sleeves. A striking gown of black velvet has cherry red and gold sleeves.

There is such a youthful charm about the cape frocks and suits that it is not surprising to find them conspicuously featured in every collection of autumn and winter models, particularly among those designed for the school and college girl. One shop known from coast to coast for its youthful clothes which meet every demand of smartness and practicability makes a special point of the cape suit.

It is developed in soft woolsens and consists of a frock with a silk top, a wrap-around skirt of wool and a hip-length coat which has a cape extending just over the shoulders. The collar

Rows of pin tucks vary the straight-line silhouette of the coat dress in navy poret twill. Bindings are beige crepe.

Is often fur and sometimes there are fur cuffs, but the model which has been received most enthusiastically has simply the touch of fur at the neck.

There are also charming little frocks of wool, velvet or velveteen. These have a short, straight or circular cape which snaps onto the shoulders and may be removed when necessary.

In one instance it is fashioned of very dark green wool. The cape is of circular cut and has a collar of gray caracul. On the back there is a little straight Chinese collar of silver embroidery and this touch of silver is repeated in the darling cuffs.

Warmth and Wool.

Pulled-wool comforters have taken the place, to a great extent, of those made of down. These quilts are very warm and are also very light in weight. They may be bought for varying prices according to the proportion of wool used and also the character of the cover. But it is not necessary to buy these comforters ready-made. The wool may be bought in bats as is cotton. The work of making them up is not at all difficult and takes very little time. Tufting them is quite as practical as quilting and much simpler. One may then, secure a very inexpensive and durable bed-cover.

HEAD HUNTERS

Missionary H. B. Dickson Gave Splendid Address to Presbyterian Brotherhood.

H. B. Dickson, a missionary of the Baptist church, who spent seven years in India spoke most entertainingly before the Presbyterian brotherhood Tuesday evening of his work in the Himalaya mountains. The speaker said the hill people of this country are Head Hunters and are robed only in sunshine. Sometimes the women of the tribes are found wearing a necklace of amber beads. The annual rainfall is fifty-seven feet, not inches. The speaker said with all this water the natives do not know anything of cleanliness, as they are the dirtiest people on the face of the earth. India alone has a population of three hundred and thirty millions of people. The Brahmapootra river, which is one of the sacred rivers of India, is one thousand miles long and is a stream with an unusually swift current.

Mr. Dickson showed the warring and domestic implements and some of the articles of wearing apparel which were scanty and only worn by dandies on dress parade. He worked among the natives of Assam, altho he visited other parts of India. He went among the Cabulists, traders of India and they bear striking resemblance to the Semitic races. He thinks possibly they are descendants of the ten lost tribes of Israel.

MONDAY CLUB

Trees to be Planted in Memory of Country's Soldier Dead.

At the Monday club meeting this week fifty members were present and the response to the roll call was the names of Turkish cities.

Three well prepared papers were read by Mrs. Mabel Walling on Geography and History; Nationalities and Superstitions by Mrs. Ned Bell; Constantinople, Old and New by Mrs. D. V. Courtright. A list of ten subjects were written on the blackboard and the members voted for four of these that they preferred to study for the next year's work. Mrs. Charles Mason was elected to active membership. Miss Nell Weldon reported that she had turned in $11.75 to the treasury, money which had been contributed by various organizations of the town towards the planting of trees in memory of the Pickaway county dead heroes of the World war. She regrets exceedingly that no trees have been planted and hopes that something may yet be done along this line.

FORD WRECKED.

Southbound traction car due here at 12:38 Tuesday afternoon and Edward Crist's Ford coupe collided on North Court street opposite the home of Mr. Crist as he was coming out of his driveway. He saw the car just in the nick of time and turned his machine, but was hit before he got out of harm's way. He escaped with a scalp wound on the right side of his head, but his car was badly wrecked. Mr. Crist is receiving the congratulations of his friends on his fortunate escape from what might have proved a fatality.

CHARTERED CLOSED.

At the Klavocation of the Ku Klux Klan held at their lodge rooms Tuesday evening the organization closed its open charter, received a new charter and elected officers for the coming year.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The meeting of the chamber of commerce Tuesday evening was one of the most interesting held for some time. George Griffith, advertising manager of the Crist & Mason department store, gave a chalk talk, which was interesting and entertaining.

SOME NATIONS BAR KISSING

In Japan It is Looked Upon as the Depth of Human Degradation—Cut Them Out of Films.

Remarkable penalties are exacted in some countries from those found indulging in kissing. In Milan guilty parties are liable to a heavy fine; in certain towns in Russia before the war it was also a punishable offense; while elsewhere men cannot kiss the womenfolk on Sunday without risk of prosecution.

Recently, in Belgium, a man and his wife were fined 78 francs each for having kissed in public. This case is all the more surprising, as in Belgium and France a public kiss between spouses on meeting or separation is recognized as a traditional salute.

In Japan kissing is looked upon as the depth of human degradation. Every kiss in film has to be cut out, and there are film censors who do almost nothing else but look out for kisses.

Perhaps the worst sufferers from the kissing habit are railway authorities, and in a number of instances kissing on the station premises is forbidden in view of the delay thus caused. Special notices to this effect were issued by the Bavarian state railways.

The penny platform tickets were introduced on railways in England during the war to prevent kissing on the platform and consequent delay.

How did kissing originate? The Bible is full of kissing of the widest range, from the treacherous kiss of Judas to Jacob's tender salute of Rachel at the well. The early Romans sealed all their nuptials with kisses, and kisses were a popular observance among the early Christians until, in 397, such salutes between the sexes were forbidden.

If we are to credit the Scandinavian tradition, kissing was a pleasurable habit introduced into England by Rowena, the beautiful Saxon.

Kisses have helped in no small degree to mold history. In 1794 the beautiful duchess of Gordon founded and raised the Gordon Highlanders, one of the most noted of Highland regiments, by kissing.—Baltimore Sun.

USE NEWSPAPERS FOR WALLS

Two Thousand Tons Shipped From Europe in Year—Helps Keep Vermin From Houses.

The Chinese, it is thought, are the greatest of all consumers of old newspapers. The official returns of the customhouse at Newchang show that that port alone, during the year for which figures are available, received approximately 2,000 tons of old European newspapers valued at $75,000.

It is not at first easy to imagine to what use so much obsolete news can be put. It is, however, ascertained that the middle class Chinese prefer newspaper to native wall paper as a covering for their walls. It has a greater power of resistance and affords a more effective barrier to the invasions of the vermin that infest Chinese houses, often driving out the inmates.

Moreover, the Chinese are experts at cutting out of newspapers waistcoats which they wear next to the skin. These paper waistcoats are said to be the best possible protection against a sudden "cold snap." In view of these admirable uses to which European newspapers may be put, it is not surprising to learn that the imports constantly show increase in weight.

It should be added, however, that the value of the imports has declined. This fact is explained by the rapid development of the native newspaper press that has occurred during the last few years.

Freaks of Climate Shown.

Through underground observation stations, scientists have recently completed a series of experiments that indicate Mt. Desert Island, a few miles off the coast of Maine, has a higher average temperature and greater evaporation than Long Island, more than 200 miles to the south. The recording instruments consist of thermometers that register maximum and minimum temperatures and specially designed bottles, filled with distilled water and fitted with porous stoppers that protrude above the ground. When the sun strikes them, the liquid is drawn from the glass containers in the same manner that moisture is extracted from the earth. Measurements of the water are taken at intervals and the differences noted give the amount of evaporation. On this island, trees, flowers, and plants that are characteristic of the lands of ice and the more southern climes thrive, while birds of the Arctic and the southland make it their common home during the spring and summer months.—Popular Mechanics.

The Tomb of Cyrus.

In a remarkable ruin, in a tolerable state of preservation, at Pasargadae in ancient Babylonia, is the tomb of Cyrus. It has been called "a house upon a pedestal," and consists of a pyramidal base constructed of huge blocks of white marble, surmounted by a house of the same material, covered with a sloping stone roof. The interior consists of a small chamber, ten feet long, seven feet wide and eight feet high, entered by a low and narrow door; there was deposited, in a golden coffin, the body of the great conqueror. It is supposed that a row of 24 columns (some of whose broken shafts still remain) enclosed the sacred spot. On these mutilated columns is repeatedly found the inscription (written in Persian and in the so-called Median): "I am Cyrus the King, the Achaemenian."

IN BANKRUPTCY

Barton Walters filed a petition in bankruptcy for Frank M. Dennis, of Five Points, in the United States court in Columbus Tuesday. The schedule shows assets $18,000, liabilities $22,000. The assets consist of 177 acres in Monroe township, live stock, farm implements and growing crops.

Coconut Tree's Many Virtues.
The coconut is one of the most useful of all trees to the natives of the regions where the coconut grows. The nut comprises a food and drink and the milk of the nut may be made into an intoxicant where that is desired. Its fiber is used for making ropes, rugs and matting and the husk for fuel. The wood is very durable and in the hands of the natives it is used for many purposes.

A Good Living and Something Besides

With cows and a De Laval Separator, you are sure of a good living and often something besides. With cream or butter to sell, bringing in a steady cash income; with milk, cream and butter for your table; and with skim-milk to raise calves, pigs and chickens, you are absolutely safe.

And the De Laval Separator has done more than any other factor to make this so. It is the original separator, skin's cleaner under all conditions, wears longer, and is easier to operate and clean than any other. We shall be glad to prove this to you. Give us an opportunity.

Homeric Verse.

The name Homeric verse is sometimes given to hexameter verse—the epic or heroic verse of the Greeks and Romans—because it was adopted by Homer in his two great poems, the Iliad and Odyssey. Hexameter verse, as its name implies, consists of six feet, the first four of which may be either dactyls or spondees, while the fifth must regularly be a dactyl and the sixth a spondee. When, however, the fifth foot is a spondee, the verse is said to be spondaic. A spondee consists of two long syllables, and a dactyl of one long syllable and two short ones. Virgil's Aeneid also is written in hexameter verse.

Life's Principal Business.

Half the business of life is concerned with knowing how to use men and women, how to understand them, how to get on with them, how to turn their faculties to the best account.—Viscount Bryce.

Henri Aguesseau.

If anyone is inclined to depreciate the importance of a few minutes a day devoted to some task or hobby, let him consider the case of Henri Aguesseau, the great French jurist and statesman (1696-1751). Mme. Aguesseau had the blameworthy habit of keeping her husband waiting every evening about fifteen minutes after the dinner bell rang. Aguesseau utilized this quarter of an hour each day to write a work on jurisprudence, which he brought out, after some years, in four large quarto volumes.

Exploding Cornstalks.

Cornstalks being hollow, having no pith, and being divided inside every few inches into sections, are very combustible when dried in the sun, and the air confined within the hollow sections warmed by the external heat explodes with very considerable force, so that a canebrake on fire gives the idea of a continued roar of distant musketry.

Flatfish.

When the young flatfish hatches, its eyes are on the right and left sides of its head, as in ordinary fishes, but as development proceeds one eye migrates to the opposite side, so that in the adult both eyes are on the same side of the head, says J. V. Leech, in Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

Thistles Edible.

In Scotland, despite the "Wha daur meddle wi' me?" motto, the national emblem is often devoured by hungry youths. The thistle head, having been cut off, is shorn of its down, and the center eaten like cheese, which it somewhat resembles in taste and consistency.

Saving of Breath.

Wiseman—"To look at that Englishman you'd think he was a tramp, wouldn't you?" Jokely—"Well, I know for a fact that he hasn't a place that he can call home." Wiseman—"Non-sense! why his mansion in London is!" Jokely—"Sumptuous, yes; but he calls it 'home.'"—Catholic Standard Times.

Slight Gain in Yield of Potato

In 55 Years Increase Has Been 4.4 Per Cent—High Grade Seed Is Urged.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

As potato growers, we are still in the "small potato" class, if we are to judge our standing by the gain in the average production per acre made in the United States in the last 55 years. Statistics gathered by the United States Department of Agriculture during the last half century show that the average production per acre during the five-year period, 1918-1922, was 3.7 bushels. Our grandfathers did almost as well 50 years ago, producing an average of 94.5 bushels to the acre. In other words our ability to grow potatoes has improved during these 55 years only enough to raise the average production by 4.4 per cent.

From 1868 to 1888 the average yield decreased steadily until it was but 74 bushels to the acre. Since that time the average yield has been steadily increasing until it is now the highest it has ever been. A number of reasons for the decline in yields during the first half of this period are given by the department, the most important among them being the ravages of the Colorado potato beetle during the early period of its invasion of the eastern United States, the financial depressions of 1877 and 1893, which brought about a well-marked decline in agriculture in New England, New York and other heavy potato-producing areas, and a gradual depletion of soil fertility.

This downward tendency has been checked by a number of factors which have helped to increase the yield and average production per acre. Some of these beneficial factors are the influence of the agricultural experimental stations, agricultural colleges and the United States Department of Agriculture, through experiments, demonstrations and extension work; the influence of the Bordeaux-mixture treatment in the control of fungous diseases affecting the potato; and the development of special potato-growing sections where the average yield is often from two to three times the general average for the United States.

Produce Better Seed.

Recently more attention has been given to the production of better seed by growers who are making a specialty of producing certified seed and seed of high quality. The use of high-grade seed, says the United States Department of Agriculture, would increase the returns from potato crop of the country by many millions of dollars. Good seed is one of the determining factors in the production of maximum crops of potatoes.

Selfmade and Homemade.

Our observation is that most girls would rather go out with a self-made man than a home-made hat.—Dallas News.

EDUCATION WEEK IN SCHOOLS

American Legion Will Have Generous Aid in Conducting Program Beginning November 18.

The observance of American Education week, a movement sponsored last year by the American Legion, which received whole-hearted co-operation from school, church and civic authorities, has again been designated, and will begin Sunday, November 18. At the time set, Legion posts throughout the country will unite in an effort from which practically every school child in the United States may profit.

The slogan for the 1923 observance is "Visit the Schools Today," and is aimed to enlist more interest in the institutions of learning on the part of the parents. Garland W. Powell, director of the National American Legion commission of the American Legion, has outlined a definite program for the movement, which is receiving endorsement of school authorities in every section of the country.

Each day of the week has been set aside for some particular consideration, according to the program offered by Mr. Powell. Beginning with Sunday, when pastors of all denominations will deliver sermons on the relationship of the church and the school, all phases and influences of school life will be touched. Monday, according to the program, is to be known as American Constitution day, when it is hoped that a concise idea of citizenship may be obtained by consideration of the instrument which made it possible. The observance of this day is especially calculated to reach parents of the students. Patriotic customs and methods will form the basis of the next day's observance. This is to include flag etiquette and similar practices of a patriotic nature which the Legion has played an important part in formulating. The fourth day is to be of particular significance to schools and to the teachers. It is to be known as "School and Teacher day," and topics of training of instructors, adequate pay for teachers and bettered facilities for schools. "End-illiteracy day" is the title suggested for Thursday. Formulation of plans to bring about study of reading and writing for both children and adults will be the aim for this day. One of the most vital features of the entire school program will be considered on Friday, when community development and its relationship to schools of the nation will be topics. On Saturday efforts will be given over to outlining a program for education of American youth along physical lines. Adequate playground facilities and general physical education will be urged.

Through efforts of the Legion and school authorities, who co-operated in the movement last year, many thousands visited the schools daily. The response to the observance was general, and the more ambitious program of 1923 is expected to bring about even a wider recognition of the possibilities of the Legion's program.

Support of the National Education association, state school authorities, and other educational leaders promise to make the Legion's education week of nation-wide import and benefit.

POST WILL CONDUCT SCHOOL

West Palm Beach (Fla.) Organization Is Financing Kindergarten; Extends Program in 1924.

The American Legion is performing a distinct public service in West Palm Beach, Fla., where the local post is financing and standing sponsor for a kindergarten. So only five children will attend the Legion's school during the winter months.

The kindergarten is under supervision of the city school authorities, but could not have been opened except for the participation of some outside agency to furnish necessary funds. Realizing the necessity for the early training of the little folk, the Legion has taken steps to supply the need, and has employed two teachers.

It is anticipated that a waiting list will be maintained in order to care for the demands of parents. If the term is successful, the Legion may extend its program in 1924.

Again, Swat the Fly.

The number of bacteria capable of being carried by one house fly varies from 550 to 6,000,000. Hence a crusade against this pest which is most numerous during the season of the year when epidemics are likely to occur will play a great part in prevention and spread of any malady.

Tidiness of the Ant.

No creature is more tidy than an ant. A well-known authority says their toilet articles consist of coarse and fine toothed combs, hair brushes, sponges and even washes and soaps. Their combs, however, are the genuine article, and differ from ours mainly in that they are fastened to their legs.

Chickens' Neglected Duty.

Laura Jane was in the habit of going with her mother to feed the chickens. Sometimes she would find a pretty feather in the park. One day we went and she could not find a feather and she exclaimed: "Why, mother, the chickens did not lay me a feather today."

Sea Serpents Really Exist.
Although many of us may have an idea that sea serpents exist nowhere but in fiction, that is not the case, and of all snakes they are the most venomous. In tropical waters they are very numerous, especially in the Indian ocean, where they are often seen literally by hundreds swimming at the surface of the water. They are six to eight feet long, very fierce and will commonly attack human beings. Their bodies are flat and almost wholly filled by the lungs.

"Raining Cats and Dogs."
Old myths from Norway contain weird tales of the influence of cats and dogs on the weather. As the cat represented the rain, the dog was supposed to be the wind that accompanied the rain. Therefore, to "rain cats and dogs" means to rain and blow, says the Detroit News. The dog and wolf were attendants upon Odin, the storm god. In old German prints wind is represented by the head of a dog or a wolf from which issue great blasts. English sailors still say that a rain comes when the ship's cat is unusually frisky. Witches were believed to assume the form of cats and ride upon the storm.

Crocodile, Sacred Animal.
Where the river is wide the crocodiles are most numerous and here sometimes one may see them fully exposed on the banks. To the Bannanese the crocodiles are sacred animals and they do not hunt them except when they have killed a human being. Then the monster has to pay heavily for it. Usually a trap is set near one of the tributaries in the vicinity where the accident occurred and a piece of monkey flesh with barbed hook hidden inside is used as bait. If the animal is caught it is cut into pieces, which are used as manure for the fields.

Many United States Flags.
The United States has had a different flag for every war. The flag of the Revolution had 13 stars in a circular blue field and seven red and six white stripes. During the War of 1812, the flag had 15 stars and 15 stripes. At the time of the Mexican war, the flag had 13 stripes and 20 stars. When the Civil war broke out, the flag was the same except that it had 34 stars. Before the Civil war ended two more stars were added. The Spanish-American war flag had 45 stars. The flag used in the World war had 48.

Insects in Winter.
Spiders usually spend the winter in the egg state, the mother enclosing the ball of eggs in a beautiful silken bag, and hiding it wherever she can get a chance. Many insects spend the winter in the larva or worm state. Still others spend the winter in the chrysalis state. These chrysalides may be seen attached to the twigs of bushes, or under the bark of trees, or imbedded in decayed wood, while the change goes on which transforms the crawling worm into the beautiful winged creature.

AMUSEMENTS

It is not often that a screen production is received as enthusiastically as was "The Rustle of Silk," which had its premier at the Met theater last night. This is a Herbert Brenon Paramount production, with Betty Compson and Conway Tearle featured in the leading roles.

Mr. Tearle, in the role of Arthur Fallaroy, England's Colonial secretary and next in line for the post of Prime Minister, is the victim of a plot by one of his enemies, the owner of a newspaper to ruin his reputation by the publication of several love letters of the existence of which he is unaware. He decides to give up politics grant his fickle wife the divorce she has long demanded, and marry little Lola de Breze (Betty Compson), a smart hairdresser, with whom he has fallen in love, or her part Lola worships Fallaroy, but will not consent to his forsaking his country in a time of need, and it is with her encouragement that he wages a winning fight and becomes prime minister.

Miss Compson, in this picture, may well be credited with the best performance of her screen career, and Conway Tearle, the leading man, by reason of flawless work is deserving of the greatest praise. The supporting cast, which is a thoroly capable one, includes Cyril Chadwick, Anna Q. Nilsson, Leo White, Charles Stevenson and Tempe Piggot.

"Plug Hat" Totem Pole.
On top of one of the grotesquely carved totem poles of the Alaskan Indians there is a figure of a white man in stovepipe hat and frock coat. The art of totem pole carving consists almost always in the representation of animals and the part they played in the old myths. But this totem pole represents a certain Indian's claim to fame; either based on his own experience or founded on his ancestry, or both. It is a sort of combined distinguished conduct medal and coat-of-arms. In this case, an old woman belonging to the house in front of which the pole stands was the first person to see a white man. The figure representing what she saw was accordingly put on her pole.

Geyers Furnish Power.
Along Little Sulphur creek, near Healdsburg, Cal., north of San Francisco, the ground is pock-marked for ten miles with geyser holes. A company has dug two wells each 220 feet deep. Deeper than this their drills refused to go. An eight-inch casing was sunk in each hole to bring up the steam generated, and this was forced through three-quarter-inch pipe into a steam turbine. The pressure of the steam on the three-fourths-inch pipe aggregates 70 pounds to the square inch. With a five-inch vent, the pressure aggregates 30 pounds. The turbine through which the steam from the two wells is forced generates 1,500 kilowatts. An extensive power development project is being planned.

Giant's Causeway.
According to legend, the Giant's Causeway was the beginning of a road to be constructed by giants, from Ireland to Scotland. It projects from the north coast of Antrim, Ireland, into the north channel, seven miles. It consists of 40,000 vertical, closely fitting columns of basalt rock, varying from 15 to 18 inches, and is formed into three sections, known as Little, Middle and Honeycomb Causeway. The "Wishing Chair," with two arms and a back and the "Lady's Fan," are on the Middle Causeway. At the starting point is the "Giant's Loom," to the left, the "Giant's Chair." An electric tramway now connects the town of Potrush with the "Causeway."

EASTERN STAR

Birthday Anniversary Fittingly Celebrated—Past Officers Confer Degrees.

One of the largest and most enjoyable meetings in the history of Cir-
cleville chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, was that held Tuesday evening in the chapter rooms in the Masonic temple.

The occasion was the celebration of the twenty-sixth anniversary of the
order in this city and one hundred and
fifty or more members and visitors
witnessed the exemplification of the
work and the ceremony in connection
with the birthday observance.

The degrees of the order were conferred on two candidates in splendid
fashion by a corps of officers made up
past matrons and a past patron. These past officers demonstrated the fact
that time has not dimmed their recollections of the ceremonies of the work
nor their knowledge of the lessons
taught.

The officers were: Worthy Ma-
tron, Carrie A. Patton; worthy patron
Leslie D. May; associate matron, Eva
Black; conductress, Mae B. Tolbert;
assistant conductress, Nellie Weagly;
marshal, Amy Nickerson; secretary,
Ella Finkel; treasurer, Essie Reber;
chaplain, Belle Gearhart; Ada, Lucy
B. Price; Ruth, Jennie Sweyer; Esther
Mary Nending; Martha, Mary Boggs;
Electa, Irene Newton; organists, Nellie Weaver and Laura Bentley.

Many visitors were present from Chillicothe, Washington C. H., and Williamsport. A feature of the meeting was the singing of solos by Mrs.
E. K. Johnson and Mrs. M. B. Trout.
Mrs. Paul Kelser was the accompan-
ist for the former and Mrs. George H.
Bentley for the latter.

After the work of the evening had
been concluded an impressive birthday program was rendered at the altar, after which all repaired to the Red
room where refreshments of sandwiches, coffee, cake and ice cream
were served.

In Memoriam.

Editor Union-Herald:—Lucinda El-
len Crites, daughter of Henry and Margaret States Van Wey, was born July 9, 1840, in Madison township, Fairfield
county, Ohio, and departed this life
December 25, 1923, aged 83 years, five
months and 16 days.

On March 31, 1864, she was united in marriage to Charles R. Crites, who died January 1, 1879. To this union
were born two children, Miss Anna
and Durbin. Besides son and daughter she leaves to mourn their loss a
host of relatives and friends.

Mrs. Crites was baptized in infancy
by Rev. Henry Willard, of sainted memory. She was converted in early
years and united with the Hopewell
M. E. church at Clearport, at which place she still held her membership.
Owing to ill health Mrs. Crites for a number of years was unable to attend
church, but she never lost faith in her
God. She lived a consecrated and devout life up to the very last. Thanksgiving and praise to God her Father
were among the last words from her
lips. She is now reaping the reward
of a faithful life.

The funeral service was held at the
home in Stoutsville Thursday afternoon, December 27, at 2 o'clock. Rev.
R. S. Beaver officiated. The hymns:
"Abide With Me," "No Night in
Heaven" and "Nearer, My God to Thee" were read by Rev. J. M. Wenrich of Columbus. Interment was in Maple Hill cemetery.

JAMES DELONG DEAD.

James D. Delong died at the home
of W. H. Brown, 565 East Franklin street, Tuesday afternoon at 4:30
o'clock, after an illness of two weeks
of pneumonia. Mr. Delong was born in Lancaster August 29, 1877, and was the son of Gabriel H. and Anna Litterel Delong. He was a veteran of the Spanish-American war. One sis-

HERE AND THERE

Norman "Red" Ryan, notorious bandit and desperado, was sentenced at Toronto to life imprisonment, with 30 lashes, to be given 10 a month for three months.

John Gilmore was shot to death and John Dunne was seriously wounded in a gun battle at Chicago, the sequel of a labor war.

Body of Miss Rowena Robinson, 17-year-old high school girl, was found at the bottom of a deep pocket near El Paso, Tex. The girl's face had been mutilated.

Federal senate adopted the Ladd resolution, directing the secretary of agriculture to investigate alleged manipulations on the Chicago grain exchange.

Postal receipts during December, 1923, broke all records, according to reports received by the postoffice department from 50 selected cities. The reports showed an increase over December, 1922, of 7.55 per cent.

Attorney Disbarred.

Columbus, Jan. 9.—Attorney Lemuel D. Lilly, 61, was disbarred by unanimous decision of the local judges. Lilly admitted the misappropriation of money of clients, including the Methodist Children's home at Worthington and Ohio Wesleyan university. He denied intent to defraud.

"The Store That Treats You Right"

IF TREMENDOUS VALUES
STIR YOU TO ACTION---
READ THIS THRU TWICE!

The only way to keep a city full of men spending money after Xmas is to produce Value that can't conveniently be turned down.

It's being done here---honestly-- sincerely--- yes, sensationally---yet legitimately.

Look at these Kuppenheimer Suits at $35--- look at these Irish Poplin Shirts at $2.50---or take for example, our wool mixed Underwear at $2.50----

These we call real buys---so real that if you see them and compare them your own dollars will suggest a trip to Colwell & Katz's.
